IRISH WORLD MOURNS AT GRAVE OF MAC SWINEY

G.O.P. TO DIG UP 8 YEAR RECORD OF DEMOCRACY

Senate Plans Inquiry Into Wasted Funds.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.

While Democratic waste of public funds and inefficiency of administration appear to be influencing voters in the presidential election quite as much as if not more than the Wilson league of nations issue, it transpired last night that there are to be still further sensational revelations of the character of the Democratic stewardship of the last eight years.

I have learned on unimpeachable authority that serious accusations of the misappropriation of government funds by various departments, chiefly for political purposes, and of shielding of influential offenders have been laid before Senator Kenyon of Iowa, chairman of the senate subcommittee which recently investigated campaign expenditures.

Senator Kenyon has determined that there shall be a thorough inquiry into these charges and intends to bring the matter before congress in December with a view to initiating investigation by the standing committees of the house and senate created many years ago to supervise expenditures in the several departments.

Subjects Under Investigation.

This proposed investigation is intended to shed light on the following matters:

1. To what extent public funds have been diverted to finance the expenses of political workers in Democratic conventions, as was shown to have been done by the department of justice in the case of numerous assistants to the attorney general who went to San Francisco to aid the campaign of Mr. Hughes for the nomination. These were several hundred government employees in and about the convention, and the inquiry would disclose whether they all went at government expense and whether there was a similar use of public funds in the case of the Democratic convention at St. Louis in 1916.

Involves Possible Tax Evaders.

2. To what extent wealthy evaders of income taxes have been enabled to escape prosecution by employing as counsel Democratic leaders wielding powerful influence in Washington. The Kenyon committee heard considerable testimony relating to the compromise of claims for evaded taxes against the officials of two Pennsylvania steel concerns who had retained former Congressman Carlin, later the manager of the attorney general's nomination campaign. Mr. Carlin asserted that the compromise was effected on the merits of the case without use of political influence.

Shipping Board Extravagance.

3. There is still another line of inquiry the results of which are to be made public after the election. That concerns the expenditures of the shipping board, which have been investigated by a committee of which Representative Walsh of Massachusetts is the chairman. The committee is known to have found a prodigious waste of public funds by the board after as well as before the armistice, and a serious irregularity of procedure involving at least one high official of the shipbuilding organization.

The waste of funds and inefficiency that characterized the conduct of the war, culminating in the gigantic $1,000,000,000 airplane program fiasco, have been comprehensively set forth in the findings of the house committee of which Representative Graham of Illinois is chairman. Mr. Graham cited to the house the officials of the war administration which in the opinion of the committee ought to be prosecuted criminally and not such prosecutions never have been instituted by the administration.

Powder That Didn't Puff.

The sum of $60,000,000 was spent on a powder plant near Nitro, W. Va., which never produced a pound of powder for the war. After the armistice

PRANKS ENRAGE WOMAN; PASSING CHILD SCALDED

Boiling Water Hurlled from Balcony.

Lack of humor on the part of the victim of a child's Halloween prank may cost the life of Leon Lieberman, 9 year old son of Jacob Lieberman, 1065 North Shore avenue.

Little Leon was severely burned about the head and back when Lottie Klapprotta, one of the proprietors of the Venetian bakery, 6600 Sheridan road, believing he was one of a group of children who had played "tick-tack" on the bakery windows, threw a bucket of scalding water over him.

Mrs. Henry E. Weisert, wife of the secretary of the Bissell-Weisert Piano company, remonstrated with the woman, and was struck on the hand with the iron bucket which the Klapprotta woman threw at her. Her injury was slight.

Sisters Resent Pranks.

The bakery is operated by Miss Klapprotta and her sister, and for some time, it is said, they have been unpopular in the neighborhood. Halloween night children played several pranks, such as marking the windows with soap and attaching "tick-tacks." This enraged the women, who carried a large bucket of scalding water to a small balcony over the windows.

Little Leon had been having a Halloween party at his home, and was on his way with some other children to a drug store for ice cream. As they passed beneath the window Miss Klapprotta threw the water, most of which struck Leon.

Mrs. Weisert and her husband were a few doors away when they heard the splash and the child's scream. They hurried to the boy, and Mrs. Weisert called to the Klapprotta woman:

"Now see what you've done. You've scalded that little boy."

In response Miss Klapprotta threw the bucket at Mrs. Weisert, striking her on the hand.

Father Smashes Bakery Window.

Mr. Lieberman, father of the boy, heard the commotion, and ran to the bakery. When he learned his son had been burned he broke a window in the bakery trying to force an entrance. Police arrival prevented further damage. Lieberman will obtain a warrant for Miss Klapprotta.

The sisters have been involved in other trouble. Recently a customer brought back a loaf of bread and was beaten. Another time neighbors called the police to force the women to tie up a vicious dog. Later the dog was poisoned, and the women blamed Detective Sergeant O'Donnell of the detective bureau. They filed charges against him, but he was exonerated.

2D HUSBAND OF MRS. TOM THUMB DIES AT AGE OF 71

Middleboro, Mass., Oct. 31.—Count Primo Magri, 71, second husband of Mrs. Tom Thumb and himself a famous dwarf, died at a hospital here tonight after an illness of two weeks.

Two weeks ago Count Magri, who was thirty-seven inches tall and weighed fifty-five pounds, held an auction sale of the late Tom Thumb's effects and those of his wife, and with the proceeds planned to return to Italy. He was born in Bologna in 1849. He first appeared on an Italian stage in 1865 and four years later received his title from Pope Pius IX. With it went an annual pension.

Primo and his brother Ernest, who was thirty-eight and one-half inches tall, came to the United States in 1878 and later joined the famous Barnum troupe, which included Mr. and Mrs. Tom Thumb. In 1885, two years after the death of Tom Thumb, the widow was married to Count Magri at Trinity church, New York.

WITH THE HELP OF THE DUKE

By CLARENCE BUDINGTON KELLAND

A fast moving, sure fire, bull's-eye story—BLUE RIBBON! In next Sunday's Tribune

THE RESTLESS AGE

(Copyright, 1920, By The Chicago Tribune.)

In the conflict between heart and head, the latter won. Tom Wickham accepted the invitation to dine with Miss Morland on Saturday, and wrote a long, apologetic letter to his mother. He knew how disapproved she would be, and with each word that he wrote he felt a growing weight of self-condemnation. He strove to persuade himself that he was acting for what would be the best in the long run, but down in his heart of hearts he knew these arguments did not ring true.

Miss Morland received his note with a cryptic smile, and tossed it aside. "Very amusing," she thought. "Miss Lucille Morland, the beautiful daughter of Henry Morland, is entertaining Mr. Thomas Wickham, ex-chauffeur, at a small dinner! We go far these days to find relief from boredom!"

His mother opened his letter with trembling eagerness, and its contents fell like a blow. She had been so sure he would come. She had been counting the hours, and his room had been aired and made cheery with flowers. She had even called up Emily Harbridge to tell her that Tom was expected. And now this bitter disappointment.

"Tom is not coming," she said to her husband. "He says he's invited to a dinner at the home of the people he's working for, but that he'll try his best to come next week."

Later, when Harry Ellgate came in, his head still bandaged, she asked him about the Morlands.

"Well, they're quite important," he told her. "He's very rich, and his daughter is socially very prominent."

"Is she attractive?" asked Tom's mother.

"Well, she's very good looking, but not appealing. I think I'd say she was rather hard. I've known her for years, and I must say I don't much like the idea of Tom's getting mixed up with her. She's generally very nice to a man until she's caught him, and then she gets bored and drops him flat."

"If she's that kind, I'm sure Tom won't like her. But, just the same, I wish he wouldn't see much of her."

Ellgate was struck by the note of tired listlessness in her voice, and as he walked out to the hammock in the orchard where he was spending most of his convalescence his mind was busy with a noble plan for protecting Tom from the heartlessness of Lucille.

"Of all the cold-blooded propositions in the world, she is the champion! And Tom's the next victim. It's rather decent of her to stick around with her father when he has to be in town, but I can see her, bored stiff, with nobody to play with, and grabbing the first amusement that offers itself."

He reflected for a long time before he reached a decision.

TEUTONS "STUNG" BY 14 POINTS, SCHIFFER SAYS

BERLIN, Oct. 30.—(Delayed.)—Dr. Eugen Schiffer, former minister of justice, speaking in the Reichstag today against the Versailles treaty, said that the German people had been deceived into laying down their arms by President Wilson, whose failure to stand by the fourteen points, he declared, made the treaty a laugh. Under the covering note, the Germans, said Dr. Schiffer, had not only the moral, but documentary, right to demand revisions of the treaty.

"The treaty itself," said the former minister, "is a crime against the German nation and the whole world."

The attack met with apparent approval from all sections, but Herr Daumig, leader of the New Communists, prophesying a coming revolution and the overthrow of capitalism, declared that his party desired revision by other means.

"POOR BOOB" OF WANDERER CASE VANCOUVER MAN

The "poor boob" in the Wanderer case, identified a few nights ago by Herbert Potter, Canadian, living at the Lafayette hotel, as John B. Barrett, also a Canadian, is now believed to have hailed from Vancouver, B. C.

Through the Great Western Casualty company, 443 South Dearborn street, police are hoping to obtain clues which will bring further identification. Circulars containing his picture and an accurate description in an effort to find his parents or other relatives.

By this method the police have also appealed to Canadian newspapers to publish the picture and description of the Wanderer victim.

3 DIE, 2 DYING, 4 SHOT IN DAY OF GUN FIGHTS

Policeman Held as One of Killers.

Murders in Chicago Since Jan. 1, 1920... 156

Three men were murdered, two more are dying, and four others were wounded in a series of gun battles and affairs in Chicago during the last twenty-four hours.

More than $25,000 in loot was obtained by footpads and auto bandits in twenty-four different holdups.

The dead include a stock salesman, the nephew of an alderman, and a prize fighter. One of the killers was a policeman. Two other policemen are in the list of slightly wounded.

The men who are dying are the chief of police of Elmhurst and a South Chicago blacksmith who is accused of attempting to graft $100 while impersonating a government official. The Elmhurst official was shot by robbers; the blacksmith by a policeman from whom he attempted to flee.

The loot of holdups men included stolen overcoats, diamond rings, watches, money, automobiles and—whisky. One man, even, was deprived of his hat and gloves.

MURDER AT TEARNEY'S

Chester Bevis, 35 years old, 842 Windsor avenue, made up a party, consisting of himself, his wife, Mr. and Mrs. H. Edsall Olson, 6101 Winthrop avenue, and J. F. Hunt of the Congress hotel, to the cabaret.

At 1 o'clock yesterday morning they entered the restaurant of Al Tearney, 336 East Thirty-fifth street. They sat down at a table and ordered sandwiches.

At another table was Mrs. Anna Dixon, a pretty widow, whose home is at 4719 Kenmore avenue. With her was Policeman Joseph R. Norris of the Cottage Grove avenue station. Norris was off duty, in plain clothes and drunk. A quarrel arose between the pair. Norris slapped the girl. Bevis interfered.

"I'm an officer! I'll arrest the whole crowd of you!" said Norris. Bevis' party fled through a side door. Norris followed. He caught up with Bevis as the latter was about to enter the party's taxi.

Two shots were fired. Bevis dropped with two bullets in his heart. He died at Michael Reese hospital.

Police were called. They locked Norris up and then tried to suppress the news. Norris, sobered, denied he ever had taken a drink. He was stripped of his star and held.

MADDEROM KILLED

Charles Maddermom, 24 years old, 10956 South Wabash avenue, nephew of Al. Guy Maddermom, walked up South State street, near Twenty-first street, with Herman Rohrbacker, 11305 Edbrooke avenue, early yesterday morning.

"We were out in the colored district to see the Halloween costumes," Rohrbacker later said. "Two Negroes met us at the corner. Both had guns. I ran. Charles fought. I went around the block and then went home."

Pink Mayfield and Edward Evans, Negroes, found Maddermom's body in a vacant lot. He had been shot.

One of Maddermom's assailants wore a dark blue suit and a green cap. The other was 5 feet 6 inches tall, wore a green suit and a brown fedora hat.

Young Maddermom was a former soldier.

EX-PUGILIST SLAIN

Two weeks ago Tony Sansone, 717 Norton street, taxicab driver, ex-prize fighter, and "pork and beans" fight manager, staged a contest for Frank Diamond, a former pugilist, in a gymnasium at North Western and West Grand avenues. Diamond was knocked out by Sansone.

An argument arose over $150 said to be due Diamond as his share of the proceeds of the fight. The pair were expelled from the club rooms. Outside the talk was resumed.

Troops Guard Last Rites at Cork Burial

(Chicago Tribune-New York Times Cable.) (Copyright, 1920.)

CORK, Oct. 31.—Mourned by the whole city and saluted alike by his own comrades in arms and his former opponents—British troops in armored cars and motor trucks which patrolled the route—the body of the late lord mayor Terence MacSwiney was buried today in the "republican plot" in the cemetery where the body of his predecessor, MacCurtain, already reposed.

Swathed in silken republican colors, the polished elm coffin was carried through silent avenues of people. From the city hall to the cathedral the procession was of small dimensions and well within the military authorities' suggested limitation of a quarter of a mile in length.

Cortege Headed by Priests.

It was headed by bearded fathers of the Capuchin order, medieval figures, with black skull caps. Among others on foot were members of the Dail Eirann (the so-called Irish parliament), Arthur Griffith, acting president of the Sinn Fein, being a prominent figure.

There were small girls, many in Irish costume, from the Gaelic league, and local brigade officers of the republican army, besides many civic representatives. MacSwiney's two brothers were among the bearers, as well as the deputy lord mayor. The coachmen in the cortege had thick folds of white around their hats and bodies.

In one of the bands were three high prelates, the archbishops of Perth, Glasgow, and Cashel, in purple robes. Another carriage with the blinds drawn was occupied by near relatives. To one of the two horses containing wreaths were attached four streamers of black crepe held by Irish volunteers.

British Troops Salute.

Close to the city hall were motor trucks filled with armed soldiers and two armored cars, and as the coffin passed the officers came to salute and men stood stiffly at attention.

This was a mobile patrol, which, as soon as the cortege had passed, drove by back streets to another point on the route.

In other spots were more parties of troops and police, watching to enforce, if necessary, the restrictions with respect to military movements and formations. An airplane, too, roared over the city during the mass.

Both sides were apparently determined not to disfigure by any unconsidered and precipitate action the last passage of the lord mayor through the streets of his native town.

Carried by His Friends.

From the cathedral to the cemetery, three miles distant, the coffin was carried by relays of bearers. Practically the whole route was lined with guards, and where there were not enough volunteers the line was kept by boys and by university and theological students, even girls, and even being utilized for the purpose.

The military patrols kept to the by streets and at the cemetery, which was not reached for nearly two hours, a strong body of troops with armored cars was posted in a hollow out of sight of the crowd.

Admission to the burial plot was by ticket only. Bishop Cullen of Cork conducted the burial rites.

Crowds Throng to Tomb.

Archbishops, bishops, and black garbed clerics were crowded about him, while volunteers, two deep, surrounded the plot, which contains the ashes of MacCurtain, the grave of the Cork hunger striker, J. Murphy. On the hillocks masses of people stood on tip toes to watch the ceremony, in which the solemn chanting of the "benedictus" was followed by the clicking of cenners.

Half an hour after the ceremony, and when the troops had left the vicinity, a volley was fired over the grave by volunteers, revolvers being used for the purpose. At the time the graveside was thronged with people, who were freely admitted after Father Dominick had recited the rosary.

DUBLIN, Oct. 31.—Mount Joy prison, where Kevin Barry, 18 year old Sinn Feiner, is confined under a sentence of death, is surrounded tonight by thousands of persons who are reciting prayers for the youth. Barry was convicted of the murder of a soldier and his execution is fixed for tomorrow morning.

Archbishop Walsh and Ald. O'Neill, lord mayor of Dublin, today waited on Viscount Lord French to plead for clemency and reprieve of Barry. They were informed the matter was under consideration.

TRIBUTE PAID IN CHICAGO BY GREAT THROG

Cortege Marches to Coliseum.

Many thousands took part yesterday in a memorial service in honor of Terence MacSwiney, lord mayor of Cork, who died of starvation last week in Brixton prison after a hunger strike lasting seventy-four days.

The throng gathered in Grant park. Leaden skies canopied the parade ground. A weird wind moaned off the lake—stirring the myriad flags in a mournful rhythm. There was a solemnity in the ground.

The Parades began gathering shortly after 2 o'clock. At first there was a little knot—less than a hundred. Soon an artillery caisson appeared hauled by bluejackets with red discharge chevrons on their sleeves. It was parked on the Van Buren street bridge. A detachment of men in the khaki of the American expeditionary forces appeared. A uniformed man wearing the bar of a second lieutenant and a D. S. M. approached the caisson. Over it he draped the Stars and Stripes and another banner—the white, green and gold of the "Irish republic."

Form Guard of Honor.

The men in overseas uniform came to attention. Hands snapped to caps, then the ex-soldiers took their places as guard of honor about the caisson. By 2:30 the bridge and the adjacent acres of the park were black with a moving mass of humans. Thousands of moving flags, American and Sinn Fein, broke the monotony of the squares.

Down the street at the double quick swung 500 men in khaki—with the red chevrons of the discharged veteran on their sleeves and citation cords and medals freely scattered among them. In silence they took their places in company formation along the viaduct. A bugle sounded. They came to attention. The blue jackets hauled the funeral caisson to the Michigan boulevard end of the viaduct. A color guard of uniformed men—ex-marines, ex-bluejackets, ex-doughboys—followed. A party of men in black, crepe on their arms, crepe fastened about their hats, bore a crepe festooned painting of Terence MacSwiney.

No Cheers; Just Silence.

"There was not a cheer—the silence was broken only by a prolonged stifling gasp as hats were removed by a thousand of mounted police trotted off the viaduct on to Michigan boulevard. Eamon P. Butler, of the Federal Reserve bank, on horseback, followed. A bugle sounded taps. Maj. J. J. Parnell of the Prairie division stepped out a low command, the caisson began to move. The ex-soldiers swung into squad formation. The parade to the Coliseum was underway.

To Congress street the parade marched in silence. Then the doleful tones of a song vibrated through the silence. It seemed to be the signal for prayer. The thousands who lined the sidewalks uncovered and bowed their heads.

Bands Wall 'Aase's Death.'

Another bugle call. A band was playing the despairing minors of "Aase's Death." Another band took up the same wall of despair. The despair motif seemed echoed in the slow shuffle of the marching feet.

The head of the parade reached Sixteenth street and was swinging toward Wabash avenue. The end had not yet left Grant park.

At the Blackstone there was an interruption as the Clan Na Gael guards rifles reversed, passed. An old man, wearing a Grand Army button, stepped past policemen and off the curb. His step was feeble. His hand trembled as it moved toward his aloof hat, saluting the colors of the Clan Na Gael.

"I was with Meagher's brigade," he shouted in a squeaky voice, "and I'll fight again to avenge MacSwiney."

A sharp order. A brief halt. A salute for the ancient warrior.

Silent Prayer for Martyr.

In the Coliseum, silence continued. There was not a word spoken—only the shuffling of a great crowd filling the galleries and floor seats and packing every available foot of standing room. Thousands were unable to get in. They overflowed into the annex. Still there were thousands in the streets—and the marchers continued to flow from the direction of Grant park.

The speakers' platform began to fill. Senator Medill McCormick, Congressman William T. Mason, Mayor Thompson son, former Gov. Dunne, mingled with labor leaders and representatives of the Irish republic. Lawrence Ginnell, member of the Sinn Féin parliament, took a seat beside Mr. Dunne, who was chairman. Mr. MacDonald, representing Archbishop Mundelein, arose and broke the silence.

"Let us say a silent prayer for the deceased."

The thousands shuffled to their feet. Heads were bowed. From outside came the strains of "Aase's Death," the doleful clang of the gong. Then silence.

A Wild Yell for Vengeance.

Former Gov. Dunne stepped forward. From the gallery came one single note of "Taps"—the rattle of drums, and then the wild yell of the thousands, "Avenge MacDonald! Down with the British empire!"

Tarakanth Das of Calcutta, India, representing the "Friends of Freedom for India," clambered to the speaker's platform, his yellow turban gleaming with the green, white and yellow bangles of the Sinn Féin. "We'll say the British empire yet," he shouted. The cheering lasted ten minutes.

Mr. Dunne finally got order. He expounded the business of being chairman, denounced England, and presented Monsignor MacDonald. Monsignor MacDonald urged that influence be brought to bear at the national capital to secure early recognition for the "Irish republic."

Mayor Thompson Speaks.

Mayor William Hale Thompson needs no introduction. Mr. Dunne shouted.

"Three cheers for Bill—Irishman's best friend," some one shouted.

There were more than three—the mayor had to ask them to stop so he could read his speech.

"Statistics show that 34 per cent of the private and 15 per cent of the officers in the army of Washington were Irish," the mayor said.

"Ireland and Irishmen did more than any other single people to make this nation possible."

Mayor Thompson then warned against the league of nations.

"If they get that league," he declared, "some of these mornings you will wake up and find that the league has ordered all of you to sing 'God Save the King' every day. And when that day comes your mayor for one will tell them to go to hell."

Congressman Mason declared the executive at Washington was to blame for the failure of the United States to recognize the "Irish republic."

Asks Financial Boycott.

Lawrence Ginnell was presented.

"England is strangling Ireland," he declared, "and the rope she is using was provided by American money. The money England owes but does not pay the United States, is being spent to finance the ravages of the black and tans in Ireland. We ask only that you use your influence to end this—take your money out of English banks or banks under control of, or having relations with, the British empire. Use your buying power, as well as your political influence to end the outrages of the black and tans against women and children."

Edward Brennan, representing the Chicago Federation of Labor, declared the "greatest Englishman America ever knew is now in the White House at Washington."

MacSwiney's Cousin Appears.

"Peter Golden of the American committee on Irish affairs, a cousin of Terence MacSwiney," shouted Mr. Dunne. Pandemonium broke loose. He, too, pleaded for a boycott of England.

And to rout of "We will" and cheers for MacSwiney's cousin the demonstration came to an end.

PAUL DOUBTS IF GREEK PEOPLE WANT HIM KING

Asks 'Government' to Get Expression of Opinion.

Lucerne, Oct. 29.—[Delayed.]—Acceptance of the Greek throne by Prince Paul depends entirely upon the wishes of the Greek people, he told the Greek minister to Switzerland today, which informed verbally that the Greek government considers him called to become sovereign. He declared that only in the event the Greek people did not wish the return of King Constantine and excluded Prince George, the Duke of Sparta, would he accept the offer made by the government.

Prince Paul said he considered the throne belonged to King Constantine, and that, next to Constantine, Prince George had the first call to the honor.

Prince Paul's Statement.

"I thank you, as well as the Greek government," Prince Paul declared, for the sympathy you have extended on the death of my beloved brother, and, replying to your offer, I beg you to convey the following statement to the Greek government, and request the latter to convey it to the people of Greece. I do not share the point of view of the Greek government, by which, according to the constitution, I am today called to ascend the throne.

"The throne does not belong to me, but belongs to my august father, King Constantine, and my eldest brother, Prince George, in constitutionally his successor. Neither of them ever renounced his rights, but both were obliged to leave Greece in obedience to their supreme patriotic duty. The solution of the question raised by their departure is still in suspense."

Says Father Wants People's Will.

"Concerning the special conditions specified in your offer, the king has always declared himself willing to subordinate his will to the free expression of the desires of the Greek people. As for Prince George, he has never made any declaration at all, and it is not for me to ask him to renounce his rights."

"I am convinced my point of view corresponds to that of the Greek people, to whom the right in any case belongs to make final decision by the free expression of its will, to which we all should submit ourselves without opposition."

"By this expression of the will of the Greek people, internal peace will be fully assured, and at the same time the bonds which have always united the Greek people to the dynasty founded by my venerated grandfather, the late King George, will be strengthened."

"I would, then, consent to ascend the throne only in the event of the Greek people deciding it does not desire the return of my august father and excludes Prince George from his rights of succession."

Poles, Tired of Waiting, Break Lithuanian Line

[Chicago Tribune-New York Times Cable.] [Copyright: 1920.]

COPENHAGEN, Oct. 31.—A special from Kevne reports that the Poles, who for some days had been inactive, awaiting in vain a reply to Zeligowski's note of Thursday, attacked on the whole line, breaking through the Lithuanian front between Malaty and Oljany and taking the town of Gedroitch.

In New York, a crowd estimated at 40,000 thronged the Polo grounds in a demonstration. Another 10,000, the police estimated, failed to gain admittance to the grounds.

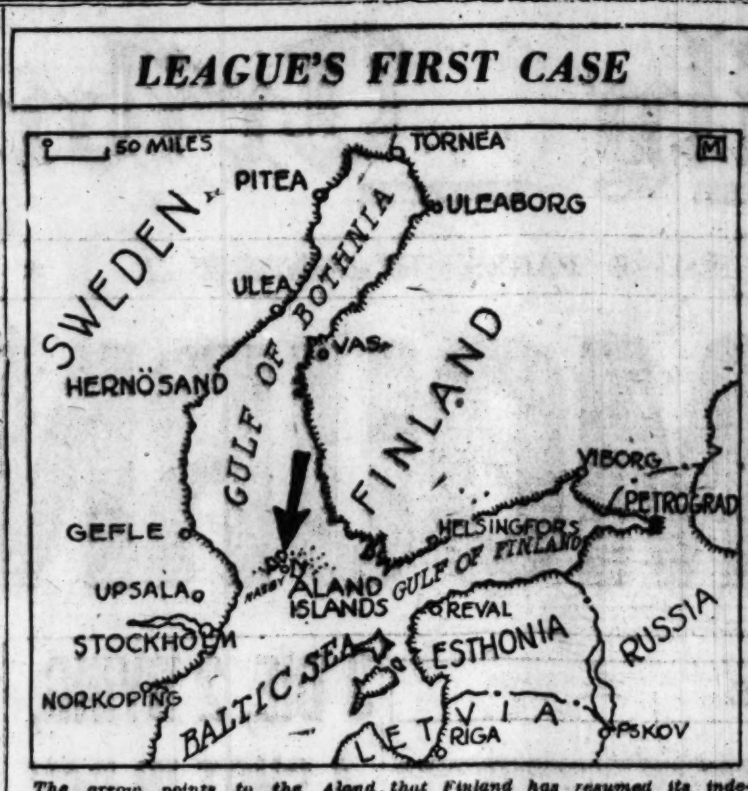

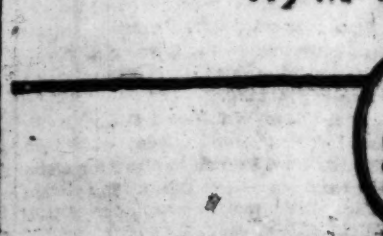

San Francisco celebrated a requiem mass and watched a parade headed by former sailors, soldiers, and marines in uniform.

BODY OF KING ALEXANDER IS LAID TO REST

ATHENS, Oct. 29.—[Delayed.]—King Alexander's body was this evening placed in the royal mausoleum at Tatol, following funeral services in the cathedral here. Queen Mother Olga and other members of the Greek royal family, Mrs. Manos, widow of the late king, the crown prince of Sweden, the prince regent of Serbia, representatives of King George of Great Britain and King Victor Emmanuel of Italy, members of the diplomatic corps, and government officials crowded the cathedral to the exclusion of the public.

Through lined the streets as the funeral procession, headed by the crown prince of Sweden, the prince regent of Serbia, and the crown prince of Greece, passed through Athens toward Tatol.

On each side of the streets were lines of British, French and Italian naval detachments, which saluted as the coffin passed.

GERMAN JUNKER WRITES A NEW HYMN OF HATE

[Chicago Tribune-New York Times Cable.] [Copyright: 1920.]

BERLIN, Oct. 31.—A German nobleman has written a new hymn of hate. It is for Junker brains to treasure up in the hearts of all embracing verse, which is translated as follows:

"There comes a day
A Prussian song,
You cannot take
A people like the Prussian folk and break them into bits.
It's all the same
The happy golden time of Prussia's hate,
And vengeance, too."

It contains the whole junker gospel as announced at the recent junker congress in Hanover—hate and vengeance.

Plebiscite to Determine Vilna District Status

WARSAW, Oct. 29.—[Delayed.]—The council of ministers has agreed to a plebiscite under the control of the league of nations to determine the status of the Vilna district.

SWEDEN TO GET ÅLAND ISLANDS, DIPLOMATS SAY

League Commission to Decide Ownership.

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 31.—[Special.]—Diplomatic authorities here regard as a certainty the decision of the Åland islands to Sweden as a result of the proceedings of the commission, created by the league of nations, to decide the controversy between Sweden and Finland over the rightful allegiance of the archipelago. President Wilson has selected the American member of the commission, announcement of whose identity is awaiting the acceptance of the appointment. The choice was made more than a week ago, and it is possible that the name will not be made public here, but be given together with the full personnel of the commission.

Always Claimed Islands.

Sweden always has insisted on its right to the islands, even after losing part of retaining them when by Russia's threat to surrender them in a detailed account of the history of the islands reveals. Their restoration to Sweden was offered by Great Britain and France in exchange for Sweden's neutrality during the Crimean war, an offer Sweden refused to accept without sufficient guarantees, which were not forthcoming, although Sweden did remain neutral.

The Swedish government sought to induce the powers to insert a clause respecting the Åland islands in the treaty of peace in 1856, seeking their restoration, and failing that their neutralization, and a final alternative, accepted as indispensable, the prohibition of the fortification of the islands.

People Favor Sweden.

A plebiscite, regarded by diplomats as appropriate and free from any kind of manipulation of the population of the islands was taken on Dec. 25-26, 1917, a considerable time before the outbreak of the Finnish civil war, showing that 95 per cent of the adult population desired reunion with Sweden.

Compulsory Work for German People Planned

[Chicago Tribune-New York Times Cable.] [Copyright: 1920.]

BERLIN, Oct. 31.—The scheme for industrial conscription for both men and women on the Bulgarian model has been worked out fully by the German government. It is mainly the work of Prof. Schuecking. Compulsory work for one year is provided as a substitute for the former army service, with a view to increasing the sense of discipline among the masses. This proposal meets with great opposition from the Socialist and Democratic elements in the country, while the conservatives naturally are in favor of it.

HARDING'S FINAL PLEA IS FOR END OF ONE MAN RULE

Will Lead Nation Into "a"
League for Peace.

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.
Marion, O., Oct. 31.—[Special.]—Senator Harding returned to Marion today to remain until he learns the result of the election. If he is elected he intends to go away for a rest of two or three weeks. His plans after that are indefinite, although it is expected he will go to Washington for the December session of the senate.

The senator today issued a final plea to voters, and also a statement to those states where Republicans are contending for senate seats, urging the people to send them to the senate to make a "United America, ready to go forward to new confidence and new achievements."

Bought to Deceive People.
"There has been an attempt by the Democratic leaders to make the American people believe that the Republican party is against America entering into a fraternity of nations to prevent war and to cooperate for peace," the statement said. "This is a deceit, and of course is an attempt to blind the people to the league of nations issue as it was framed by the Democratic leaders and by the Democratic platform."

"The issue as presented by the Democratic administration and its representatives in this campaign is simply the question, 'Shall we enter the league of nations, assuming among other obligations the obligation of Article X?'"

"The answer of the Democratic group is 'Yes.' The answer of the Republican party and its candidate is 'No.'"

Will Form "A" League.
"I have told them I would do my best to unite America behind a plan for an association of nations which may join with safety, honor, and good conscience, but without selling our birthright for a mess of military postage."

"I have said from first to last in this campaign that I would consult the senate, and consult the people, because I am deeply impressed with the utter failure and waste of an executive policy of fabricating a league of nations first and consulting America afterward."

"I want to consult America first and take a course which will unite America and make it possible to join a world fraternity of nations, rather than a course which will divide America and make it impossible for us to do anything."

"A Democratic victory means the continued deadlock with the senate, which has been so fruitless and would be fruitless forever."

"No!" Nation's Reply.
"Our opponents have asked the American people to approve their draft of a league. The American people have said 'No!' This means that the man who is elected president must set his face toward a constructive plan. I have pointed the way."

"The other issue in this campaign arises from the need of a definite constructive policy for putting our own house in order and attending to the repairs and reconstruction which eight years of Democratic mismanagement have made necessary. A little more of that mismanagement, its wastes, follies, spendthrift policy, and vacillating conduct would put our industry, business, and agriculture on the rocks."

"The next administration will have all it can do to make these repairs. Certainly every one's attitude toward America's future and America's example to the world requires thought of a constructive program. It would be madness for us to go on as we have been going. For that reason I have stated the program of the Republican party."

He's Against Autocracy.
"I have said we must restore constitutional government, so that the will of the people rather than the will of one man government should control."

"I have said that we must control the best ability among Americans to help."

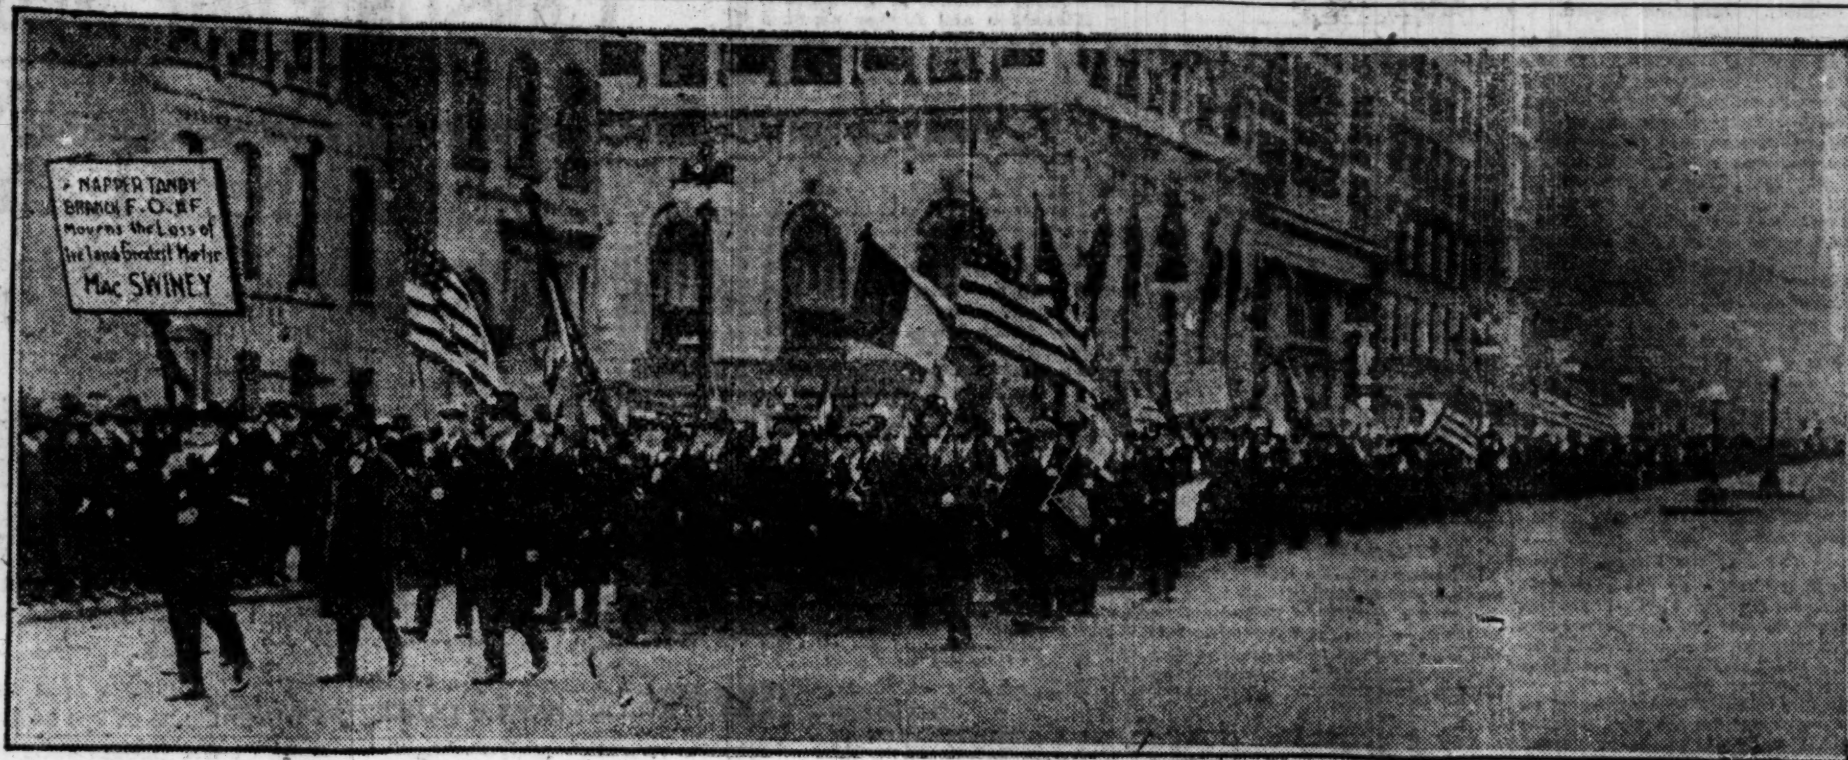

"I have said we must unite Americans in harmony and in patriotic, industrious, willingness to play our parts."

"I have said we must protect our industry from unfair foreign competition, that we must preserve our agricultural prosperity, that we must build and maintain our merchant marine and expand our foreign trade."

"I have said that we must make our government efficient and cut our taxes by saving in the cost of government. We must stop the wild wastes which are still going on."

"I have said we must conserve and

POSSE KILLS TWO NEGROES, JAILS 12 AFTER BIG FIRES

Montgomery, Ala., Oct. 31.—Two Negroes are dead and twelve others are in jail charged with arson, as the result of the burning last night of two farm houses, a cotton gin and a number of tenant houses in Montgomery county.

Telephone calls following the start of the fire brought a sheriff's posse, which was fired upon from the roadside by Negroes.

Dropping beside their automobile and using it as a shield, the posse returned the fire, finally killing two Negroes and capturing twelve. No motive is ascribed for the burning.

OWNER STRICKEN AT BOAT RACE

Halifax, N. S., Oct. 31.—W. C. Smith of Lunenburg, managing owner of the schooner Delawana, Canadian entry in the contest for the North Atlantic flag, was stricken with paralysis while conversing with friends in the rotunda of the Halifax hotel here tonight.

Excitement attendant upon the race is believed, in some degree, to be responsible for the stroke.

Capt. Himmelman of the Delawana said today his vessel was too heavily ballasted for the light weather in which Capt. Mary Welch piloted the Esperanto to victory yesterday. For the second race tomorrow he supervised some changes in his boat.

WILSON WIRES LEAGUE PLEA TO BOSTON MEETING

Boston, Mass., Oct. 31.—A telegram from President Wilson was read at a meeting in Symphony hall tonight in the interests of the league of nations.

Addressed to John F. Moors, chairman of the meeting, the telegram read:

"I wish I could be present to give proof of my great interest in the noble objects of your meeting. Never before have our people been called upon to pass judgment upon so vital an issue. I am confident that we can rely upon the men and women of all parties in Massachusetts to support and sustain the great cause of the league of nations."

The name of the president was repeatedly applauded.

Among the speakers were Hamilton Holt, Miss Margaret Prescott Montague, the Rev. Samuel M. Crothers, and Ray Stannard Baker.

All urged the election of Cox and Roosevelt.

TUESDAY MEANS JOY OR DESPAIR FOR WORLD--COX

Gets Cheering Reports from the West.

BY ROBERT B. SMITH.
Dayton, O., Oct. 31.—[Special.]—The result of Tuesday's election "means joy or despair worldwide," Gov. James M. Cox declared in a statement tonight at Tralissend. He insisted the issue was just what Senator Harding declared it to be in his Des Moines speeches, "going in or staying out of the league of nations."

The governor arrived in Dayton early this morning from Chicago and passed the day roaming about the woods and fields of Tralissend. He received reports on the political situation from all parts of the country which cheered him. Information came that his prospects in the west have been materially improved during the last few days.

Gov. Cox will remain at Tralissend until tomorrow afternoon, when he will go to Toledo to make the final speech of his campaign. He will return to Dayton Tuesday morning to vote. He will receive the election returns at his newspaper office in Dayton.

Says Nation Favors League.
"I have visited thirty-six states and have had the opportunity of observing public sentiment," Gov. Cox said tonight. "I am convinced that the sentiment in America is overwhelmingly in favor of the league and of our entrance into it."

"I am in favor of going into the league," Senator Harding is in favor of staying out. I am concerned about clarification; he is concerned about rejection. These are the outstanding words of the campaign."

"Senator Harding says he will not submit the treaty of peace to the senate as it is, but that he will change it. Since the president is without the right to make any alterations, this means that he will not submit it at all. This will result in one thing and one thing only, in controversy and confusion."

Again Cites Pledge.
"When the men and women go into the voting booths it is their duty to remember the pledge that was given in the name of America."

"The chaotic state of things in a part of the world cannot go on much longer without the backwash striking the very foundations of our commercial institutions."

"I have faith in the conscience of America. It has given a pledge that it did not redeem, and no great moral question has ever failed when it was submitted to the judgment of the people."

"Suffering humanity waits upon the voice of America. The verdict of Nov. 2 means joy or despair worldwide."

G. O. P. TO DIG UP 8 YEAR RECORD OF DEMOCRACY

Senate Plans Inquiry Into Misspent Funds.

There was stored at Nitro property worth $100,000,000 at a fair cash value. The plant and this property were sold for $5,551,000, most of which is in deferred payments.

The sum of $11,393,737 was paid the Hercules Powder company for operating the nitro plant. Electrical lines and machinery were built for another company at the same place at a cost of $2,900,000, giving to them a first class system and a practical monopoly on the Kanawha valley. The company kept the lines and equipment and the government settled for $81,990. In addition the company got a long time contract to furnish power for the naval armor plant at Charleston, W. Va.

Ninety millions was expended for the construction and operation of Old Hickory Powder plant near Nashville, Tenn., which produced no powder that could be used during the war.

Escaping Gas. A total of $116,194,974 was spent on nitrate plants at Sheffield, Ala., Muscle Shoals, Ala., Toledo and Cincinnati, from none of which a single pound of nitrate was produced for use against the Germans.

Not a pound of American gas was ever fired in an American shell, and only about 100 tons of American gas reached in shells ever reached the field dumps, yet $114,000,000 was spent for poison gas.

The government built three pier acid plants and seven plants to make the phenol and acid required for them. This was to furnish pieris acid for the French who desired it for explosives. The plants produced nothing that was used in the war, and cost us $35,000,000. The French were to pay the whole bill, but the government settled with France for $14,000,000.

The sum of $17,116,000 was spent in construction of a port terminal at Charleston, S. C. It was built in an isolated swamp ten miles up the Cooper river, where it was necessary to dredge to reach it. No man, animal or war materials were shipped out of this terminal during the war.

Wasted Shells. The ordnance department spent $2,914,489,570 from the beginning of the war until June 1, 1919, as much as it cost to finance the whole civil war. A large part of it was spent in a program of manufacturing artillery and ammunition. This is what the government got for it:

Of fifty three contracts for 37 millimeter shells on which was expended $9,124,532, not a single shell ever reached the firing line.

Of 29 contracts for 75 millimeter shells on which was expended $301,841,469, about 6,000 shells were fired.

Of 142 contracts for three inch shells on which $44,841,844 was

ESTHER SIGWALT.

$78 was spent, not a single shell reached the firing line.

Of six contracts for fourteen inch shells on which $1,266,477 was spent, not a shell reached the firing line.

Artillery Construction Record.

The government let 111 contracts to the amount of $478,228,846 for the construction of artillery of all calibers, guns, howitzers, gun carriages, limbers, and recuperators. Of this immense expenditure there reached the American troops, and were actually used in combat, 89 75 millimeter anti-aircraft mount trucks, 48 4 7 inch guns of the 1908 model, 48 4 7 inch gun carriages of the same model, 24 8 inch howitzers, and 24 8 inch gun carriages.

Balanced against this lack of things primarily essential for fighting were amazing expenditures for less essential things, including more than ten pairs of shoes for each man in the service, more than nine saddles for every cavalry horse, thirty-six sets of spur straps for each ordnance officer, one breeching iron for every two animals, one pair of saddle bags for every animal, notwithstanding that a very small proportion were cavalry horses, and 149,000,000 hand bread cans, of which only $1,000,000 were used.

The Airplane Flap.

Testimony taken by the committee reveals that although $1,061,811,988 was expended for aviation and airplanes up to the time of the signing of the armistice, not a single fighting plane was at the American front.

The sum of $50,000,000 was spent on a spruce production program, building elaborate railroads, camps, and facilities, notwithstanding which the government was forced to buy 82.6 per cent of its spruce lumber from private sources.

Spruce railroads that never hauled a log of lumber cost $10,000,000.

The government spent $206,632,920 for sixteen national army cantonments, built by the cost-plus system, which could have been constructed, according to estimates submitted to the committee, for $123,101,393, or $78,531,527 less.

BRACKENMAN RAIL VICTIM. Frank M. Johnson, 30 years old, of Franklin Park, brackeman on the Indiana Harbor Belt railroad, died Saturday in the Oak Park hospital of injuries received when he was knocked off a freight car.

U. S. DENIES IT SOLD SUPPLIES OF WAR CHEAPLY

Army Food Cut H. C. L., It Declares.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 31.—[By the Associated Press.]—The war department today answered charges that the government had sustained great loss through the sale of surplus war supplies with the claim that it had "saved over $4,678,847,881 to the taxpayers of this country" through the sale of such supplies and "settlements of claims."

The department made public a statement of several thousand words, in which it took up in detail charges made recently in a number of newspapers. Characterizing these charges as "unfounded," it said that to have a proper understanding of the situation it "must be remembered" that the department, in making its purchases of war materials, was contemplating a field force of 5,000,000 men.

Prepared for Long War.

Declaring that how long it would be necessary to maintain this force in the field was a question which could not be answered, the statement said that the war "continued another year, the supplies on hand at the signing of the armistice would have been totally inadequate."

Sales of war materials overseas aggregated $322,923,235.82. France, it was stated, purchased goods for $232,500,000 and in addition waived customs duties estimated at approximately $150,000,000 and further assumed the payment of 150,000 claims against the United States arising out of the American occupation and use of installations and lands.

Saving to Taxpayers.

"As a result, therefore, of the work of the United States liquidation commission," the statement continued, "the war department saved to the taxpayers from the sale of surplus war materials in Europe $973,232,235.82, plus the claims for damages which would have been entered against the government. Thus, the claim that the property, which had cost this country $1,890,989,502, was disposed of to the French government for $4,000,000, payable in ten years, is entirely erroneous."

In addition to the surplus sold overseas, the department said, equipment valued at $472,000,000 was returned to the United States, and "to reduce the high cost of living" the war department in the last year and a half had sold approximately $25,000,000 worth of food supplies at 60 per cent of their cost value.

3 SLAIN, 2 DYING, 4 SHOT IN DAY OF GUN FIGHTS

Policeman Is Arrested as
One of the Killers.

West Madison street, "slipped" Diamond a gun. Diamond fired twice. Samone died in the county hospital, with two bullets in his abdomen. Diamond was captured by Policeman Eugene McGee. Murphy is also held.

POLICE CHIEF SHOT

Saturday night a new Masonic temple was dedicated in Elmhurst. The suburb was crowded with visitors. As the guests left the hall three robbers appeared. Four were robbed in fifteen minutes. Chief of Police Harry C. Magers was notified. He rushed to the scene on his motorcycle. The bandits opened fire. The first bullet struck the chief in the abdomen. As he fell he fired at the robbers, wounding one of them. Citizens of the village armed themselves. The roads leading from the village and in Melrose Park, Bellwood, Maywood and Forest Park were searched. Automobiles were stopped; those which didn't stop were fired on. At daylight a trail of blood was followed a mile to the barn of Charles Thomas Smith, wounded in the ankle. The Felitz boys, brothers-in-law of Smith, were also taken. Last night Smith confessed. He named Wallace Nicholson of Lombard as his companion. Chief Magers will probably die.

SEEKS GRAFT; SHOT

Albert Chesser, blacksmith, 9423 Burnside avenue, South Chicago, wanted easy money. He got himself a star marked "Private Detective." Last night he walked into the saloon known as Frank's Place, 9301 Cottage Grove avenue. "I'm a government officer. Give me $100," he said. Just then Policeman Charles McCurdy walked in. He arrested Chesser, and took him to a patrol box. As the officer opened the box, Chesser ran. McCurdy fired twice into the air. Then he fired three times at Chesser. The blacksmith was shot in the ankle, hand and head. He is at the county hospital, and will die. He has a wife and three children.

SHOT BY BURGLAR

William Sanderson, 415 West Thirty-ninth street, hung his pants at the foot of the bed when he dropped Saturday night. At dawn he awoke. Two men were in his room. One fired, and both jumped through a nearby window.

Sanderson is at the county hospital wounded in the abdomen and right hand. He may die. The assailants escaped.

Edwin J. Larney is a law partner of Congressman John W. Ralston. Last night he was shot in the back by a man named John Golombiewski, Republican, for reelection. Yesterday Larney met a number of Golombiewski's adherents who were posing lithographs of their candidate in Washtenaw avenue near Thirty-eighth place.

There was an argument. Larney was shot in the leg as he started to flee into a restaurant. He was taken to his home at 2702 South Western avenue. Louis Pommier, 3625 South California avenue, companion of Larney, was beaten badly in the fray.

OTHER CRIMES

Policemen Peter Mark and Cornelius Cooney of the Kensington station raided the saloon of William Piskun, 116 East One Hundred and Seventh street, yesterday afternoon. Piskun met their entrance with a fusillade of shots. A bullet passed through Officer Mark's foot. Piskun is arrested.

Robber Shot by Watchman

An unidentified robber was shot and probably fatally wounded early this morning by John Sahora, a watchman around Ashland avenue and Forty-seventh street.

The bandit had stopped John Abroski of 4858 Justine street. Just then Sahora came around the corner. He ran to the aid of the man and the robber fired at him. Sahora fired back. The robber ran into an alley and fell. Sahora's shot had struck him above the heart.

Youth Shoots Kenilworth Robber.

Two robbers attempted to get into the home of L. A. Bennett, 185 Sheridan road, Kenilworth, last night. They awakened Robert C. Bennett, Mr. Bennett's son, who fired three shots at the thieves as they fled. A trail of blood showed he hit one of them.

The thieves presumably were after liquor. Mr. Bennett is head of the L. A. Bennett Electrical company in the Merchants Loan and Trust building.

There were three other robberies in Kenilworth during the last week. A. E. Goodfriend and wife were held up by four men at Champlain avenue and Sixtieth street. From Goodfriend they took $25 and a watch. His wife lost two rings valued at $1,500.

Take Four in Gun Battle.

Frank Morretti, 1139 O'Neill street; Peter Clark, 2012 North Racine avenue; P. Matthews, 2151 Clybourn avenue, and John Chappa, 1248 Cleveland avenue, attempted to rob the Erickson clothing store, Clybourn avenue and Division street, last night. They had guns and a stick of dynamite. The Chicago avenue police responded to a phone call. There was a gun battle. Fifty shots were fired. The four men were captured.

Alvaham Kolish, 1054 North Leavitt street, had a hat, an overcoat, and $94 last night. Two men got it.

Robbed of $440.

Robert Collins, 5850 Laflin street, lost $440—a gold watch. Nathan Stein, 1418 South Ridgeway avenue, gave up $100 and a $200 diamond ring. George Nipphen's drug store at 1428 East Fifty-fifth street yielded five cases of whisky to an armed pair. An-

BEARDED RABBIS AND ERIN'S SONS ACCLAIM J. HAM

Hears His Praise in Many Tongues.

Having observed his well known whippers, having heard his eloquent voice—the Irish and the Poles, the Bohemians and the Jews yesterday stamped their feet, clapped their hands, and informed the world that they approve of James Hamilton Lewis.

The Democratic candidate for governor, fitting from hall to hall, showed himself a true cosmopolitan. He talked to a Yiddish rabbi in the Tenth ward and gazed upon that gentleman's gray beard with an appreciation that no smooth shaven Democrat could ever feel. He hearkened to the commendatory shouts of the Archer avenue sons of Erin and, thrusting his fingers in his vest, observed:

"Us Irish is awfully noisy."

"Hurrah for Ham Lewis!" was the burden of the cry on every hand—and the accent was never the same.

Lashes City Hall's Attack.

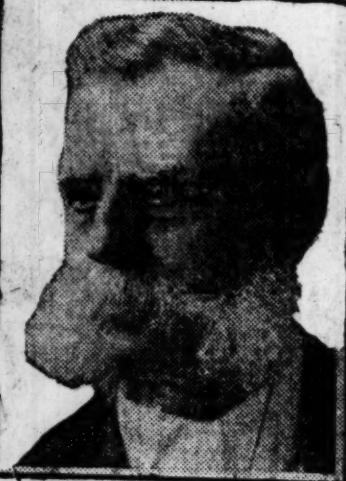

Col. Lewis, in his afternoon and evening talks, told how Mayor Thompson and Mr. Small had attacked him because, as mayor leader in the senate, he had introduced bills to buy clothes, food, and medicine for the doughboy in France.

"In reply to my assaults on these gentlemen for the disgrace they have put upon Chicago and the dishonor they now threaten for Illinois under criminal Negro domination, they answer that I have committed a crime in voting appropriations that gave an American soldier the arms and food to defend himself against a foreign foe," he said. "These two men appeal for votes by begging the father and mother to defeat the because I would not let their boy rot with hunger in the trenches and die with disease in camp and field."

"Let all Illinois reply to this shame. I want to save her from a domination of scoundrels, from politicians who have only selfish interests, from a clique that will do by Illinois what they have done by Chicago—left it shabby and hopeless. Look what an army the Thompson people have been able to build up on the jobs they have got out of Chicago; what a superarmy they will

Postmaster General in McKinley's Cabinet Expires at Baltimore, Md.

Baltimore, Md., Oct. 31.—James A. Gary, postmaster general under President McKinley from 1897 to 1898, died this evening. He was 87 years old.

Death was due to infirmities of age. Until several months ago he daily visited his office and attended to his personal affairs. His large cotton manufacturing interests he had previously turned over to his son.

Gen. Gary was Republican leader in Maryland for fifty years. During the time he was postmaster general he inaugurated the movement for the establishment of postal savings systems.

He was able to control when they have the patronage of Illinois.

Must Be Stunned Now.

"You must stop this thing now or hear it for many years. This is the people's crusade, their fight against the bosses. I have no machine no organization—and I have given you my solemn word I will not be a candidate for reelection. Fate has hurled me into this fight at the most critical hour in the history of Illinois. We must save her. Let us march on to victory!"

The shout that answered him sounded like a war cry.

"You're as good as sold," a genial Irish spokesman assured him.

"I hope you win," a timid little Yiddish woman had told him an hour before.

"We're for you, Ham!" was the cry in every hall. And when he climbed into his machine the ever-crowded crowd around to shake, as they put it, the hand of the next governor of Illinois.

Lewis Asails McBride.

Mr. Lewis last night made public a letter assailing P. Scott McBride, state superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League of Illinois, for his charge that while Lewis was in the senate he voted for every wet bill and against every dry measure.

"Your statement is deliberately false or purposely ignorant," says the letter to McBride. "I am being fought by certain saloon interests because I voted for every dry bill that had to do with prohibition during all of the war, and every dry bill for prohibition so long as it was a legislative amendment and not a constitutional amendment."

"I did all I could against the prohibition constitutional amendments on my theory that these amendments ought not be passed which would apply to the people in time of peace without giving opportunity to the people when at peace to decide the method of their prohibition."

Cites Mayor's Statement.

He called attention to "the open statement of Mayor Thompson and his candidate in his own platform for the complete destruction of the Volstead act and liberal application of the prohibition laws and opposition to Sunday closing."

"I do not object to your supporting any other person for office," Mr. Lewis said, "but to misrepresent me and in order to recommend a gentleman who stands upon a platform for repeal of both prohibition laws puts your splendid institution open to the accusation of lending itself to false purposes under a Christian flag, either for financial or political influences that will dishonor its noble membership."

TRAIN VICTIM DIES.

An unidentified man, about 45 years old, who was struck by an Illinois Central railroad train at East Oak Hundred and Thirty-sixth street last Tuesday night died yesterday in the Pullman hospital.

Two Advertising Men Needed

A prominent Advertising Agency is in need of two men in Chicago.

ONE capable of assuming the responsibility and authority of a General Manager; the other as a producer or copy writer.

A large portion of the Agency's clientele is in the financial and transportation fields. For that reason a knowledge of finance and transportation and an acquaintance in La Salle Street would be assets, but not necessary essentials.

The men sought are those who have proved themselves and have arrived at a position in the advertising world. They are possibly now engaged, but feel their wings beating against the bars. They must both be able to meet men and be representative of the organization. They must be congenial and livable to fit into a happy organization where everyone feels it is a good place to work.

Then salary will depend entirely on what they have done and can do with their opportunities open to them.

All letters will be given the strictest confidence.

SMALL REGRETS LEWIS' 'APPEAL TO RACE HATRED'

G. G. P. Claims 380,000
Harding Lead in State.

Len Small, Republican nominee for governor, yesterday issued a statement in which he accuses James Hamilton Lewis of "appealing to race and religious bigotry." He does not specify in what the appeal to "religious bigotry" consists.

"The campaign is over," said Mr. Small, "and I await with supreme confidence the verdict of the voters. The one regrettable feature that I deplore is that my Democratic opponent has been fit to degrade himself by appeals to religious and race prejudice instead of discussing frankly the things that stand for as governmental policies."

"Unworthy a Candidate."
"This attempt to fan the fires of religious bigotry and of race hatred constitutes a most dangerous assault upon American institutions. It is unworthy of a candidate for governor and would shame any one but a man who is anxious to divert attention from a record of betrayal of the people's trust while he held public office."

"The studied plan adopted by my Democratic opponent to hide this advocacy of the Wilson league of nations, and to fool Republicans into voting for Democrats, in my judgment, will not bear fruit."

"I appeal to all the good men and women of Illinois to be 100 per cent American by voting for 100 per cent Republicans. Every vote cast for a Democrat is a vote for confidence in Wilson and the league of nations. A vote in the Republican circle casts a full vote for Harding and Coolidge and for officials who will uphold the hands of our next president."

Boost Claims on Harding.
The Republican state managers boosted their claim of the Illinois majority for Harding. Judge Adam C. Cliffe, chairman of the state organization committee, issued a statement declaring that Harding would carry the state by 380,000 majority, that twenty-four Republican congressmen would be elected and that there was a fighting chance to elect a solid Republican delegation.

Frank L. Smith, chairman of the state committee, issued an appeal for a straight ticket vote.

Harlan Makes Last Appeal.
John Maynard Harlan, Harding-Coolidge Republican candidate for governor, issued a statement in which he declared that the only way to defeat Len Small for governor was for voters to center their support on him.

"I have brought home to the Republicans of Illinois the dishonorable record of Len Small as state treasurer," he said. "The responsibility now rests on them, not upon me. They are on trial, I am not. Under the circumstances, my vote, whatever it shall be, will be the measure of the intelligence and conscience of the Republican voters of the state."

Hoover Asks Republican Congress to Aid Harding

Palo Alto, Cal., Oct. 31.—Herbert Hoover issued a statement at his home here today in which he said he considered "it vital that we should have a Republican senate that will support the Republican president that we shall undoubtedly elect."

FAST WORK BEST

Suddenness of Marriage Makes It the Sweetest, Rich Lumberman Says.

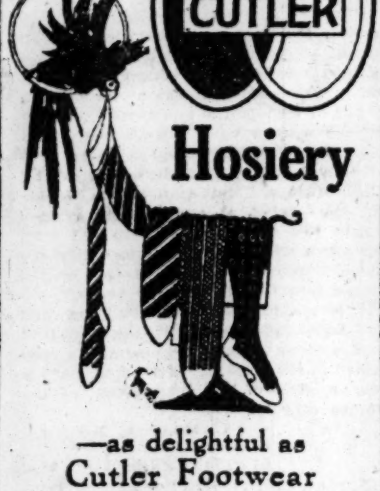

MR. AND MRS. T. D. VREDENBURGH II.

QUICK MARRIAGE is the best, according to Thomas D. Vredenburg II, wealthy Springfield lumberman, who was married Saturday evening to Miss Catherine Powell, a Chicago girl, at the Blackstone hotel.

"It was past noon Saturday when we decided on the wedding," Mr. Vredenburg said. "By quick work we managed to get a license after the county clerk's office had closed, and to find Judge Caverly, who tied the knot. The sudden decision and marriage made it all the sweeter."

The couple will leave tomorrow for Vredenburg, Ala., the home of the bridegroom's brother, Peter Vredenburg Jr., from where they will go to New Haven, Conn., to visit the groom's son, Owen, who is attending Yale.

BALLOT RESULT MAY BE HELD UP FOR MANY DAYS

If results of tomorrow's election in Cook county and Illinois should be close citizens may have to wait for days and even for weeks before the result of the election is known, just as they did to find out the result of the Sept. 15 primary. The Thompson-Lundin managers, in control of the city hall and the police department, intend to hold back the police returns on the election just as they did the returns on the primary.

The City News bureau, which furnishes all city newspapers with the election results, and formerly had access to the police returns, is again forced to rely upon obtaining them from judges and clerks of election, instead of through the police.

Expect Better Results.

Better results in obtaining returns are expected this time, as every effort has been made to perfect the system of gathering them. However, it is admitted that there is still a chance that there will be many "missing precincts" as the result of the city hall plan to withhold the returns.

Precautions have been taken by the Democratic campaign managers to prevent the holding back of the returns from availing the Thompson-Lundin managers anything.

Crowe Stands on Record; Igoe Assails the Mayor

Judge Robert E. Crowe, Republican candidate for state's attorney last night expressed himself as confident he will win by a large plurality tomorrow. He gave out a statement in which he said:

"As a candidate for state's attorney of Cook county I stand on the record which I made as an assistant state's attorney and as chief justice of the Criminal court."

"The people next Tuesday will have to make a choice between my candidacy and the candidacy of my Democratic opponent. My candidacy has been publicly endorsed by Chief Justice Harry Olson of the Municipal court and by twenty-two judges of the Superior, Circuit, and Municipal courts; by many former and present assistant state's attorneys; by Mayor Thompson, and by innumerable civic, social, and labor organizations."

"On the other hand, my Democratic opponent admits that he owes his nomination to 'Hinky Dink' Kenna and those associated with him, including 'Bull' Dalley, 'Barney' Grogan, and 'Dinky' Egan."

committees. They have been assigned, some to the country towns and others to city precincts in which frauds occurred at the Sept. 15 primary.

In addition, 600 deputy election commissioners have been sworn in and will be assigned to "suspicious precincts." Arrangements have also been made for automobile patrols of such precincts to cope with possible sluggers.

Michael L. Igoe, Democratic candidate for state's attorney, continued his speaking campaign yesterday. In his addresses he kept up his attacks on Mayor Thompson and the city hall administration. He spoke of a letter he declared had been sent out from the mayor's office purporting to give his political allies, then said:

"When one pauses to reflect upon the beginnings of our mayor, that his father was a distinguished volunteer in the war of the rebellion, and afterwards a leading business man in Chicago, that he himself was reared in an environment of patriotism, refinement and culture, that he was given the advantage of education and association, which are the heritage of few American boys, it is difficult to understand the revolutionary metamorphosis which he has undergone since the people of Chicago first chose him to be their mayor. His present position is a tragic commentary upon the evils of bad associations."

6 to 1 on Harding; 2 to 1 That He Carries Ohio

New York, Oct. 31.—[Special.]—Odds favoring the election of Senator Harding showed no fluctuation today, but because of the day there was little wagering. A few bets at 6 to 1 that Harding would be elected were placed, and Fred Schumm, Brooklyn betting commissioner, reported a small bet at 2 to 1 that Harding would carry Ohio.

Cat's Yells Save 10 When Kitchen Catches Fire

Baltimore, Md., Oct. 31.—The scratching and meowing of a cat probably saved ten lives when fire broke out before dawn in a kitchen. Mrs. Francis Pietroska, awakened by the noise, went downstairs. As she opened the kitchen door she was driven back by flames. Immediately above, with a wooden ceiling between, slept her eight children, ranging from 20 to 5, while her husband slept in the front room. Firemen extinguished the blaze. A special dinner will be prepared for the cat.

THE SKIDS ARE GREASED FOR COX.

The election which was conceded a few weeks ago to be a "push over" for the national Republican ticket now promises to become a landslide. The Democratic administration and management have furnished the initial force. The results are inevitable as the working out of a natural law.

Heated debate about the league of nations has tended to cloud other issues in the minds of politicians and in the press, but it has not destroyed such issues. The most pressing issue general in the life of the ordinary citizen is that of money. He can live either with or without a league of nations, but he cannot live without money to buy the necessities of life. We believe he is not likely to forget that the influences which bear directly upon it when he goes to the polls.

One billion dollars wasted under the Democratic administration in the aircraft program has been taken out of or being taken out of the pockets of the voters. More than three billion dollars added to the transportation costs of the country under the Democratic control of the railroads has been taken out of or being taken out of the pockets of the voters. Millions upon millions wasted by the Democratic national political machine in keeping hundreds of thousands of war emergency employees on the pay rolls more than a year after the armistice has been taken out of or being taken out of the pockets of the voters.

Democratic political business methods allowed the sale of hundreds of millions of dollars worth of food, clothing and other American goods in France at an average of less than thirty cents on the dollar while Americans at home not only paid this cost, totaling more than $900,000,000, but paid profligate prices for similar goods to supply their needs at home. This money has been taken out of or being taken out of the pockets of the voters.

In taking us to pay billions the government is not taking us to pay for the war, but to pay for Democratic waste, extravagance and almost criminal inefficiency. We must pay because we put the Democratic administration into power, but we need not double the bills by putting it into power again.

Democratic administration and policy has proved itself a cash liability to every citizen in the United States except those on the payroll or on its list of protected profiteers. Their numbers are high, but not high enough to completely bury under the landslide of Republican votes which will be cast next Tuesday.

The waste of millions of dollars cannot and will not be tolerated. The Democratic administration cannot escape or refute the records which attribute such waste to it. It may have developed a political machine and it undoubtedly made thousands of war millionaires, but neither the machine nor the millionaires can prevent the just retribution which is to be recorded on Nov. 2.

Those who suffered under the Democratic maladministration number thousands while those who profited under it number tens, and those who suffered will vote unanimously to prevent a continuation of such maladministration. It means a landslide for the Republican national ticket.

AMERICA'S OPPORTUNITY IN CHINA.

American exports showed a decrease of $87,000,000 in August from a total of $651,000,000 in July. Imports during the same period declined $18,000,000. The figures may or may not be indicative of the general trend of our foreign trade activities, but at least they serve to draw attention to the dangers of a continued slump in such trade. Europe is beginning to serve its own needs. Eventually many of our markets, developed by war conditions, will be reduced to a minimum if they are not lost completely. It seems the part of wisdom to look around us for new markets to take their place.

China offers an interesting field for such commercial prospecting. We have long been taught that China is rich in natural resources, but lacking in the capital for their development. American capital has been slow to enter that field because of legal restrictions and complicated local difficulties in China. If these restrictions and difficulties can be cleared away it is possible that our search for new markets to replace those we seem to be losing in Europe may extend no further.

Of late years strong efforts have been made to induce the United States government to permit incorporation of American companies by the United States court in Shanghai, but without success. Such incorporation is made necessary largely by the local Chinese custom of "queuing" concerns doing business under Chinese charters to such an extent that even Chinese in the south of the republic may find it necessary to incorporate as foreign firms to escape the graft levy in their own country.

The history of efforts by foreign firms to develop China is a history of graft, mismanagement and intrigue. Double track railroad lines with ninety pound rails and elaborate stations, for instance, have been built to provide for a total traffic of two trains a day in some sections. American enterprises with Chinese labor, unhampered by such grafting policies, could open up the interior markets of China in such a way that the capital outlay would be negligible. Whereas our products are now practically limited to a radius of ninety miles inland from chief ports, they could, with transportation development, have access to all of China. American steel men could build mills, using cheap Chinese ore, coal and labor, and American railroad men could build railroads at a cost absurdly low. Such development would give America first entry to the great Chinese markets.

China is willing if properly approached. What is needed is proper legal provision by the United States more than actual capital. China, which has hoarded and hidden its capital in the face of local graft and political unrest, can provide most of what is needed if assured of honest dealing and fair returns. We cannot do better than to seek a way to develop this great territory.

Congressman Dyer of Missouri, a member of the congressional junketing party which recently visited China, assured Chinese officials that the new congress will pass legislation beneficial to American business development in China in the form of a national incorporation law for foreign trading companies doing business there. If that is what is needed to open China to us let us hope that it is accomplished. Incalculable wealth is waiting. We would be foolish indeed if we see our present markets slipping away from us and do not grasp the new and greater markets which can be made available.

THE WANDERER VERDICT.

One of the jurors who gave Carl Wanderer a twenty-five year sentence for murdering his wife with her unborn child and the stranger he said he had hired to attack him is quoted as saying, "I guess we fumbled it." Aside from the murderer and his attorneys about everybody else thinks so.

It was an amazing verdict to find that the man was sane and to fix his penalty at a term which he can reduce to about thirteen years' imprisonment. The one extenuation in the murder was that the man might have been irresponsible because insane, in which case he should have been placed in an asylum for the criminal insane and kept there. If that extenuation was lacking it was murder, hideous both in motive and manner—for which some thirteen years is the penalty.

Such a process of reasoning applied in other cases would not only turn murderers loose but might decorate them for public service. The jury-men give the impression that they sincerely tried to do a verdict satisfactory to their sense of duty, their conscience, and their understanding of the evidence, and we think probably they did.

They seem to have befuddled themselves by their very efforts to do. Their fear that they would consider evidence which would be unfair, such as the confession and the testimony of men with whom Wanderer had talked when he was candid, drove them away from intelligent thinking. They tortured the case, thinking they were too wise to be imposed upon. They thought they knew too much of police methods and of newspapers. This delusion which citizens cherish regarding their information and wisdom permeates society and it prompts foolishness in community action.

The verdict was a piece of such a bolt of goods, a decision reached by men probably trying to do their duty, but confused by the fact that they thought they knew much of things of which they knew little and obtruding this idea into the problem with which they had to deal.

Thus confused, they found that the atrocious murder was committed by a sane man, but that it could be explained by about thirteen years in the penitentiary. They did not trust the police, the coroner, or the reporters who had dealt with Wanderer. They would not trust the insane asylum and they used that dangerous thing, "a little knowledge, to enable Wanderer to cry gleefully to his jail mates:

"I've beaten the rope."

ATTA BOYS.

George B. Arnold, chairman of the finance committee of the board of education, says he wishes there were boxing gloves in every schoolhouse and that if principals send in requisitions he will see that they are honored. Miss Hodge, principal of the Webster school, says she wishes there were gloves in her school. We hope she has them by Wednesday. It was in Miss Hodge's school that two of the boys were allowed recently to come to an understanding with their fists. There is a request that she be brought to trial for this, but the school authorities are supporting her. We trust they will not weaken.

The boxing glove could be a good one for the boys. With it they would fight fairly and decently, which is better than a rough and tumble in the alley, and they would learn restraint, control, and respect for each other.

Editorial of the Day

HARDING: THE MAN.

(Toledo Blade.)

The nomination of Warren G. Harding became a part of the nation's history more than three months ago. That period has sufficed to give the senator's fellow Americans—if not the internationalists who think it providential to be enthusiastic about their own country—a fairly accurate and quite satisfactory understanding of the Harding personality.

It has found him more likable, yes, more lovable, than he dared expect him to prove. He has turned millions of doubters into friends. He has made millions, who were conscious of him only as a party leader, confident that he is to be a warm, kindly, modest, upright, and very human head of the national government. Out of the mist of vague impressions has come a fixed belief in the ample endowment for the presidency of the man destined to carry the responsibilities of that great trust.

The country sees that Harding is safe. It perceives that he is unswayed and prudent. There is nationwide consciousness of his modesty. The people who are to elect him know that he will never seek to magnify his own ability or leadership by surrounding himself with weaklings. The country has no fear that he will reject honest counsel from strong men and heed only the flattery of courtiers.

And the Harding who has come so clearly and convincingly into the thought and life of the nation is broad, just, and reasonable. He will be above personal animosities. He will not stoop to persecutions born of jealousy or arrogance. His administration will not be disgraced by spiteful and ignominious tyranny. It is clear that Warren G. Harding will strive faithfully to be the impartial helper, protector, and servant of all sections.

He is the typical American; neither poor nor a millionaire, well born but self-made, in the best sense; successful but not arrogant, enterprising but careful, a man of the masses, risen to high station from the fields and quiet little towns. He exemplifies the serene home, the devoted husband, the good neighbor, the loyal friend, the helpful, public spirited citizen, who is the truest American type. The nation feels this, knows it, and likes and trusts Warren G. Harding accordingly.

MEASLES IN THE ARMY.

R. J. R. GERTLEY was a specialist in diseases of babies when he became an army surgeon. Since his superior officer had no babies for this baby specialist to treat, he assigned him to the care of baby diseases. In the army in war times measles is a very important disease—more important even than it is in a family of young children.

In the winter of 1917-18 Dr. Gertley saw a lot of soldiers sick with the measles. Many of them developed pneumonia and some of them died. From his experience there he learned some things and these things he is willing to pass on to others.

In the first place, not everybody has the measles. The army experience taught that a very large percentage of country boys and a fair proportion of town boys get to be 20 years old without having had measles. This Dr. Gertley did not learn for the first time from the war, for it is a matter of common information that many people escape measles.

In the second place, the older the child when he has measles the better his chance of getting well. The death rate of those who have measles is much reduced when the disease is postponed until the child has reached school age or older. Here are two good reasons why a mother should shield her young brood from measles as much as possible. This Dr. Gertley knew before he went into the army.

I also have a good deal of trouble with perspiring feet. I bathe my feet both morning and evening, but cannot stop the sweating. Will you tell me what to do?

REPLY.

Assuming you to be a vigorous man, the best plan is to take a shower bath for one minute or less, followed by a vigorous rub with a coarse towel. The water should be at a temperature of 100 degrees, and the towel should be at least 100 degrees.

Another group that were very susceptible were those with pigeon fever, hatched chest, barrel chest, and poor chest development generally.

And finally there was a group of measles cases that he could pick out as headed for pneumonia by the way they acted mentally.

When a patient developed measles Dr. Gertley thought he should be completely isolated, more to protect him against pneumonia germs of others than to protect others against his measles germs.

The room should be properly heated and ventilated. The attendant should be scrupulously clean, free from bronchitis and coryza, and giving no history of frequent colds.

There is a lot in this for mothers to learn. When measles is around they should guard extra carefully all children with poorly developed chests and all children very subject to colds. They should see that their children are not overworked and fatigued. And finally, if any get measles the patients should be well isolated in a well ventilated, heated room attended by a very clean, healthy person.

YOU ARE IN LUCK.

G. M. B. writes: "Kindly inform me what a low pressure indicates and what to do to bring it back to normal. Mine is considerably below normal, so my doctor says, but he has not given me any relief so far. I am 60 years old. I always have enjoyed good health."

REPLY.

I have something to say to young people with low blood pressure. Not so with men and women 60 years of age and over. If your doctor says you have low blood pressure, you should thank your stars. You should be subject to apoplexy, Bright's disease, and cardiovascular disease—the bane of elderly people. Your mark at 100 years and try to live to 110.

LAST WILL.

South Chicago, Ill., Oct. 27.—[To the Legal Friend of the People.]—Would a last will and testament in this form be legal: "I [my name], being of sound mind, leave and bequeath to my wife [her name] all my real and personal property [To be signed by myself and two witnesses in the presence of each other.]"

In general, yes, but on a matter of such importance you should consult an attorney. TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

COMPENSATION AWARDS.

Chicago, Oct. 27.—[Friend of the Soldier.]—Can you tell me the amount of compensation a man would get who was discharged from the navy on a medical certificate? His disability was incurred in line of duty.

We could not possibly tell you the amount of compensation he would be awarded. It would depend first on the nature and extent of his disability, as rated by the rating board in Washington.

THE man should go for an examination to United States public health service examining physician, who will make a report to the chief medical adviser in Washington, D. C. He in turn will submit the report to the board, which will be determined by what compensation is to be awarded. If any. The United States public health service headquarters for this district is located on the sixth floor of the Leiter building.

ANSWER AT THE POLLS.

Indianapolis, Ind., Oct. 26.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—In his letter of Oct. 14 "Ex-Officer" gave the Democrats something to think about when he spoke of conditions in St. Nazaire, France. Allow another ex-officer to go further.

Why did the present administration allow shiploads of motor trucks to be loaded at Norfolk and shipped to St. Nazaire as late as March, 1919? Why were the personnel of the motor park at St. Nazaire under orders to assemble those trucks and convey them to the "zone of the advance," to be placed in the mud at Dijon and allowed to rust for months thereafter until finally sold to the French? Why were orders and regulations, set down by Washington, such that it was impossible to draw either motor vehicles or

BRENNAN PICKS COX AND LEWIS AS SURE WINNERS

Democratic Chief Predicts Victory for Party.

George E. Brennan, Democratic leader in Illinois, who stood almost alone at the San Francisco convention in battling for the nomination of Gov. Cox when other leaders and political experts insisted his cause was hopeless, again took issue with the "experts" last night.

In the first statement he had issued during the campaign Mr. Brennan asserts that Gov. Cox will be elected and makes the first definite claim that he has a chance to carry Illinois. Mr. Brennan also predicts the election of James Hamilton Lewis as governor by 75,000 plurality.

"The currents are running Gov. Cox's way and as a result of yesterday's remarkable meetings and the tremendous sentiment which they disclosed it is now an even chance that he will carry Illinois," Mr. Brennan said.

"The meeting held in the Patten gymnasium in the heart of Republican Evanston, was the most remarkable I ever witnessed.

Makes Effective Appeal.

"In his vigorous espousal of the league of nations as the greatest moral issue of modern times, Gov. Cox made a particularly effective appeal to the spiritual nature of American voters and particularly those of the women. The sentiment aroused by the governor swept the meeting as it is sweeping America."

"The demonstration at Evanston and those in other parts of the city show that the so-called political experts who judge only by surface conditions have been deceived."

"Gov. Cox will carry Chicago and Cook county. Senator Lewis will carry our county by 75,000. Small will not do better than break even with Lewis downstate and Lewis' election is therefore assured. The revolt against Thompson is so great that we will elect all of our county ticket."

Appeal for Cox.

An appeal for Gov. Cox was sent out from Chicago by Republicans and Progressives who are supporting him on the league of nations issue. The signers include Morton D. Hull, former candidate for the Republican nomination for governor; Mrs. Emmons Blaine, daughter-in-law of James G. Blaine; Dean A. W. Small of the University of Chicago; Miss Marion Talbot, dean of women at the University of Chicago; Prof. Shailer Mathews, Graham Taylor, Harold Ickes, Mrs. James W. Morrison, George E. Cole, and Shelby M. Singleton.

Rabbi Stephen Wise of New York, speaking at three Chicago meetings attacked Senator Henry Cabot Lodge and other foes of the league of nations. "I am an immigrant, but I am a better American than Henry Cabot Lodge, who was born in America," said Dr. Wise.

Unveil Granite Shaft

A GRANITE shaft, an enduring memorial to the men of St. Anne's parish who went to war, was unveiled yesterday in the churchyard by the pastor of St. Anne's, 153 West Garfield boulevard, Mr. E. A. Kelly.

There were 432 who went into the army, the navy, and the marine corps, and six who were killed.

Mr. Kelly was for many years the chaplain of the "Fighting Seventh," Illinois National guard, and a close friend of Col. Theodore Roosevelt.

The ceremony was held at 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon, and a vast audience attended.

CUBA LOOKS TO U. S. TO PROTECT ISLAND ELECTION

HAVANA, Oct. 31.—[By the Associated Press.]—A plea for peace and order in the Cuban presidential elections tomorrow was sent forth tonight by liberal and coalition leaders, apparently alarmed by eleventh hour reports of possible disturbance.

Gen. Jose Miguel Gomez, one-time revolutionary leader and candidate of the liberal party, charging murder of liberals, appealed to his people to stand up fearlessly and fight with votes as their only weapons. If defrauded, he announced, proof would be submitted to the United States, which could be depended upon to step in and protect Cuban rights.

The charges of murder and fraud were passed over lightly by Dr. Alfredo Zayas, coalition nominee, and opponent of Gomez.

Feeling was tense in some quarters as the last battalions of troops got under way for the provinces, but the view generally was expressed that there would be no serious outbreaks.

The Crowder election law, to be tried for the first time, was cited by President Menocal as evidence that the count would be honest. The normal top vote is around 475,000.

THE DEVELOPMENT of an increasingly large volume both in the number of Savings Depositors and in Savings Deposits is splendid indorsement of the principles and policies upon which the First Trust and Savings Bank is founded:

Safety—The stock of this bank is owned by the stockholders of the First National Bank of Chicago. Combined resources exceed $380,000,000, built up thru more than half a century of experience and progress. Safety is further evidenced by capital, surplus and undivided profits of more than forty million dollars, the stockholders' financial guarantee of the stability of these banks.

Convenience, both in location, at the northwest corner of Dearborn and Monroe Streets, in the center of the loop, and in the arrangement of the interior, affording easy access to officers and to the bookkeepers' and tellers' windows.

Personnel of Management—The officers of the bank, responsible to both stockholders and depositors for the conduct of the bank's business, are men of long experience and training. They open new accounts and are easily accessible to render a friendly and helpful financial service.

Prompt and Courteous Service from both officers and staff; this principle applicable alike to all, regardless of the size of balance or the character of the business to be transacted.

FEARS LAND LAW MAY DRIVE JAPS INTO INDUSTRIES

BY R. W. RYDER.
(Copyright, 1928, by The Chicago Tribune.)

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 21.—In discussing anti-Japanese legislation as it exists in California, it is, of course, important to consider carefully the proposed initiative measure—the new anti-Japanese land act which will be voted upon in that state in November.

Under the existing law the Japanese cannot purchase farm land and cannot lease it for more than three years. The proposed measure realigns the prohibition of purchase and forbids leasing altogether, with forfeiture of the land involved as the penalty for violation of the act.

It can be seen that the proposed measure is a most drastic one and that, if upheld in the courts (it will probably pass in November) it will result in driving the Japanese from the land and into industry.

The Sacramento and Stockton labor bodies, realizing this, recently have passed resolutions recommending against the "removal of the Japanese from land to industry."

A Bone of Contention.
The anti-Japanese propagandists, however, are concerned only with the land and assert that "white farmers" will take the places of the Japanese who will be driven out.

Large American land owners vigorously dispute this assertion. They contend that during the last few years the tendency of Americans has been to forsake farming for pursuits less arduous and exacting, and that even those Americans remaining on the farms will not undertake in a substantial way to raise the crops now being

SAMUEL D. SNOW, HARVESTER CO. ATTORNEY, DIES

Samuel Dexter Snow, general attorney for the International Harvester company, died yesterday at the Presbyterian hospital.

Mr. Snow was born at Madison, Wis., Aug. 24, 1862. He came to Chicago as a child, and had practiced law here for more than thirty-five years. He had been general attorney for the Harvester company since August, 1919, and for a number of years (Moffett Photo.)

Mr. Snow was a lineal descendant of John and Priscilla Alden and directly related to five other Mayflower pilgrims. On his father's side he was a descendant of John Quincy Adams. He was a member of the Union League club.

Surviving are his widow, Daisy Dorman Snow, 4432 Beacon street; his mother, Mrs. Charles B. Snow, who lives at La Grange, and a sister, Miss Alice A. Snow, assistant head nurse at Presbyterian hospital.

produced extensively by the Japanese.

Their contention is that Americans are not physically adapted to the peculiar labor required in growing such products and therefore prefer to devote their attention to large acreage crops, such as wheat, barley, oats, hops, corn, beans, rice, alfalfa etc., which require less arduous labor to produce and are more easily marketed. It is freely predicted by these large land owners that the only tangible result of the proposed anti-Japanese land legislation will be to materially decrease the supply and, therefore, increase the cost to the consumer of those products which the Japanese now extensively raise—berries, small fruits, tomatoes, asparagus, and all kinds of green vegetables.

Sudden Removal Not Wise.

In this connection, a recent report of the California State Board of Control has this to say:
"It is but proper to call attention to the fact that any sudden removal of the Japanese from their present agricultural pursuits in California would affect our food supply very seriously. The annual output of agricultural products by Japanese in 1919, approximating $87,000,000, consists of food products practically indispensable to the state's daily supply. The Japanese, being a race of short people, seem willing to engage in those lines of agricultural work which call for so-called 'stoop and pick labor' or the class of 'stoop and pick labor'."

Control of Industry.
There is no Japanese control of industry, nor indeed even of the crops which they so extensively produce. While it is true, as has been said, that they do raise in California the largest share of certain food products they distribute and sell such products through growers' exchanges which are controlled and managed by Americans.

WHY U. S. FIRED MAN WHO THREW MUD ON HARDING

Washington, D. C., Oct. 31.—(Special.)—Affidavits by three prominent Washington citizens who were members of the board of education which discharged William E. Chancellor as superintendent of the local schools in 1914 will be published by the Washington Post tomorrow.

The affidavits declare that Chancellor was erratic, eccentric, a man of wild ideas, unreliable, wilfully untruthful by his own admissions, and that the late Senator Gallinger had said he must have been crazy.

Chancellor, who has just been forced to resign from the faculty of Wooster college, because of slanderous statements about Senator Harding, had a stormy career in Washington.

Tried on Many Charges.

Recentment against his administration of the schools reached a climax when he attacked the Washington school system, the government and citizens of the District of Columbia in an anonymous article in an educational magazine in 1907. Following the publication he was tried by the board of education and discharged by unanimous vote of the board.

Those who made the affidavits for the Washington Post were James F. Oyster, a prominent business man; William V. Cox, president of the Second National bank, and Mrs. Ella Spencer Mussey.

Affidavit by Oyster.

Mr. Oyster, who was president of the board of education at the time of Chancellor's dismissal, says in his affidavit: "He was found guilty of incompetency and inefficiency, insubordination, opposing and antagonizing the board of education and conduct unbecoming a superintendent. He was temperamentally unsuited for the office, and lost the confidence of the public and school employees. He refused to obey orders and destroyed discipline. He was found guilty of ridiculing officials of the district government. He was found guilty of lying. He stirred up racial dissension in the school system. He was erratic, eccentric, and a man of wild ideas. He could not be trusted. He was unreliable and wilfully untruthful by his own admissions.

T. R. Backs Decision.

"Efforts were made by Chancellor's friends to have pressure brought on the board of education to prevent him being dismissed under charges. President Roosevelt sent for me, and told me Chancellor should be retained, not knowing of the evidence in the case. When I showed him the Educational Review article, and proved to him that Chancellor was the author, he said, clapping me on the shoulder, 'Oyster, you're right.'"

"The senate district committee became interested in the case. The late Senator Gallinger when he saw the Educational Review article declared a man must be crazy to write such things."

It is stated in the Washington Post article that Mrs. Chancellor, who died in Washington in 1908, made a request prior to her death that their five children be cared for by relatives instead of by Mr. Chancellor. She is credited with having said that the father was unfitted to care for and protect the children.

CHANGE IN IOWA CONSTITUTION IS URGED ON FARMER

AMES, Ia., Oct. 31.—In a circular letter to the 140,000 members of the Farm Federation bureau, Secretary E. H. Cunningham of the bureau urgently requests the cooperation of the members in securing by popular vote in the coming election authority for the calling of a constitutional convention to make certain changes in the state constitution which, it is stated, will have vital bearing on conditions governing the present low market values of farm products.

In his letter Mr. Cunningham states that a special yellow ballot apart from the regular state ticket should be passed out to all voters in Tuesday's election, and every one is impressed as to the necessity of voting in favor of calling the convention.

Although constructed on strictly anatomical principles they preserve an attractiveness of line altogether pleasing and desirable.

Three types of Tru-pe-dic shoes—inflame, straight and outflare.

They conform to the natural lines of the three types into which the normal feet are grouped. The outflare type is sketched.

They are scientifically standardized for real foot comfort, and in every way are approved by the American Posture League.

Inspection will convince one of their practical qualities.

HARDING UNION LABOR'S ENEMY, GOMPERS SAYS

New York, Oct. 31.—Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor in a statement issued here today, said an investigation conducted in Senator Harding's views and practices in the industrial life of his home city, proves "his duplicity in relation to his claim of friendship for the working people and gives a full picture of his ardent championship of industrial enslavement."

The statement asserted the Manufacturers' association of Marion is organized primarily to prevent the organization of wage earners, determines the maximum wage to be paid the employees of any of its members and provides that no employee can secure employment from any other than his present employer without the consent of the employer.

"We cite two instances out of many verified," the statement said, "to indicate the methods and their workings. Six girls recently left a manufacturing plant and secured better positions in a candy factory. Upon being notified of this the Manufacturers' association forced them to return to their previous employer. A molder securing a better position in another foundry was forced to return to his previous employer or leave Marion.

Wounded Yank Loses Job.

"W. I. Holliday, a member of a molder's union before the war, was so seriously wounded in Flanders that he could not follow his trade. Through the vocational training service of the United States government he was placed in a machine shop of the Power Manufacturing company of Marion, to learn the machinist's trade. He retained his membership in the Molders' union, attending its meetings as a local officer. Some six weeks ago his foreman discharged him, saying that 'orders from higher up' demanded his discharge 'because of his union activity.'"

Holliday went to Mr. Primm, manager and vice president of the company, to demand reasons for his discharge. Mr. Primm told him that he was discharged 'for his union activity.' The vocational training service was unable to place Holliday in any other plant in Marion, and Holliday, the wounded veteran, was driven from that city."

The statement lists a number of Marion concerns in which Senator

Harding is a stockholder and director and says:

"Carrying out the anti-union policy of the Manufacturers' association of Marion, these corporations are strictly nonunion, with the single exception of the typesetters employed by the Marion Star."

The statement charged the Marion Manufacturers' association with guarding its membership so closely that it is impossible to secure a roster of members; that its meetings are held behind locked doors, and its records inaccessible and adds that it uses cards and other coded paraphernalia in its work.

Hammond, Ind., Oct. 31.—[Special.]—An East Chicago baker complains that the policemen on the beat stop every night and eat doughnuts, sometimes as many as two dozen a night, and forget to pay for them. During the last two weeks the baker says the cops ate 336 choice doughnuts.

GIRL WHO WANTS TO BE QUEEN OF MOVIES, MISSING

Sixteen year old Sylvia Lorenzen of 3335 Colfax avenue, South Chicago, is believed to have set out in quest of the rainbow, the other end of which dips down into movie land.

Ever since she was old enough to do up her own hair in approved movie fashion and to register the smile that brought the winning dimple, Sylvia, according to her father, Peter Lorenzen, an automobile dealer, longed to follow the path of a movie queen. Her parents tried to persuade her to wait, but a few days ago Sylvia disappeared.

A Vote for COX is a Vote for Prosperity

MR. BUSINESS MAN:—

James M. Cox is a Tested Executive

Experienced Organizer and Business Man

In His First Term as Governor of Ohio, the Great Dayton Flood

In His Second Term, the World War

In His Third Term, Reconstruction

And In Each Emergency He Demonstrated His Courage, Resource, Initiative and Constructive Ability

Thomas W. Lamont, a Republican and a Great Financier, says:

"Another reason why I vote for Cox is that in him the country has an experienced organizer and executive. Even his opponents admit that, as Governor of Ohio, he has done an extraordinary job in handling the problems of labor and of capital, and in introducing budgetary and other reforms."

He Knows How to Deal With Men.

"No governor has accomplished so much in maintaining harmonious and equitable relations between employers and employees," says one big Ohio manufacturer.

He Virtually Remade Ohio.

After effecting reforms in the tax system of Ohio, Governor Cox called a special session of the legislature to reduce the tax rate—and it was reduced. He is pledged to readjustment of the national taxes. He established a budget system and saved millions for the state. He is pledged to an additional budget. He gave Ohio an up-to-date constitution. He scrapped its outworn legislative machinery. Isn't that a business man, the kind of a president you want?

Prosperity Under Democratic Leadership.

For the last eight years the United States has enjoyed the greatest prosperity in its history.

From coast to coast Governor Cox noted not one tramp, not one vagrant, in all his speaking tours.

The extravagances and inequities of the tariff system have been removed.

Under the Republican banking system there was an average of one national bank failure for every twenty-one days (over a period of nearly forty years).

Under the present Democratic federal reserve system there was only one national bank failure in every four months in 1916 and 1917. In the year 1918 there was one. In 1919 and 1920 there has been none.

The disastrous recurrent panics common to Republican administrations are no more.

Think, Mr. Business Man, what this means to you!

Republican Obstructionists.

Under Democratic leadership the United States has acquired the greatest foreign trade enjoyed by any nation in all history.

It has become a great maritime power, with a merchant marine unsurpassed.

The Republican party asks your support on the pretense that it will give you a superior business administration.

Republicans have controlled congress for nearly two years, and have enacted not one constructive law.

They have been condemned on all sides as time wasters. Why expect constructive policies during the next four years from a party which has proved itself during the last two capable only of destructive tactics.

The Republicans in congress have succeeded in nothing but preventing ratification of the league covenant and the treaty of peace with Germany.

What League Means to Business.

The league of nations will stabilize international credits and stimulate American trade at home and abroad.

Under article one of the league covenant none of the forty-three member nations can withdraw without giving two years' notice. Nor can the league, as a going concern, be scrapped, as Senator Harding proposes to do single-handed without a majority vote.

Would any sound business man offer a project so preposterous?

If we go into the league our foreign trade will continue to expand, and greater prosperity will be ours.

If We Remain OUT of the League We Lose Its Commercial Advantages

NATIONAL BANKS SET NEW RECORD FOR REVENUES

Earnings 24 Per Cent on Their Capital.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 31.—The 137 national banks of the country reported a gross revenue of $1,109,000, or 24 per cent on their capital, for the fiscal year ended last June 30, said a statement today by John Skelton Williams, controller of the currency. This, Mr. Williams said, was a new high record.

Only five banks went into the hands of receivers during the year, a record exceeded only by that of the year before, when there were no failures.

Mr. Williams declared the national banks had met the "severe test" of war and reconstruction in a way that proved their "solid strength and the wisdom and fidelity" of those who directed them.

Gives World Confidence.
"The facts and figures," he added, "must give the American people and the world increased confidence in the safety and power of the banking and business interests of this country."

Earnings of the banks came largely from interest and discount. Mr. Williams said, although a total of $97,000,000 was obtained from exchange and collection charges and other miscellaneous sources.

Losses charged off by the banks were distributed as follows:

$11,300,000 on loans and discounts,
$11,300,000 on bonds and other securities, and $21,000,000 on miscellaneous losses.

The banks paid interest to depositors aggregating $287,800,000, their reports showed. Their taxes amounted to $79,400,000.

Weather Tough Times.
"The shrinkage in the value of our principal commodities and articles of production during the fiscal year ended Oct. 31," Mr. Williams said, "is the greatest in commercial history, not only in amount, but in the proportion of the decline to former values. It amounts to billions of dollars. No six years in the history of the world have brought convulsions and changes so tremendous or intense."

"The manner in which our banks have endured these ordeals is an impressive indication that they were not tempted from the ways of safety and honesty by the excitement of inflation."

MELTING POT TO START A-BOILING THROUGH STATE

Springfield, Ill., Oct. 31.—Extensive plans for the Americanization of more than 25,000 immigrants who have come to Illinois since the first of the year are under consideration by the state department of registration and education, Francis W. Shephardson, director of the department, said here today.

The state proposes the immediate establishment of a downtown office, which probably will be located at Carbondale, Mr. Shephardson said. Work with the foreign women and their children which will help them to adjust themselves to the new environment will be given special consideration.

Proposed legislation will be presented to the next session of the general assembly which will have for its object the establishment eventually of a network of Americanization bureaus in every town and city of the state. Dr. Shephardson added. Appropriation of $50,000 for this work during the coming year will be asked.

Miss Grace Abbott of Chicago, internationally known for her work in this field, is the executive secretary of the state immigration commission, under the auspices of which the new work will be carried on. According to statistics, there are at present more than 500,000 foreign born men in this state. Counting, in addition, those whose parents were foreign born, the figure is more than 2,500,000 out of the entire state population of 6,000,000.

MILLS, FACTORIES BANKING FIRES ON POOR MARKET

Lack of Orders Big Factor in "Shutdowns."

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]
Washington, D. C., Oct. 31.—[Special.]—Factories in many lines were shut down or operated on a part time basis in October, because of the unsatisfactory market, according to the monthly review of business conditions issued today by the federal reserve board.

In the shoe and leather industry as in textiles, reports bring news of curtailed operations and in some cases complete shutdowns have occurred. The review says, "Data from fifteen representative boot and shoe manufacturers in the Boston district indicate that operations are at from 40 to 60 per cent of normal capacity with little spring business placed."

Falling Off in Orders.
In the St. Louis district there are increases both in shipments and in current business in boot and shoe lines, but marked falling off in orders has reduced manufacturing activity.

Plants within the district are estimated to be operating at from 55 to 65 per cent of capacity, the larger plants being more active than the smaller ones.

Manufacturers are buying little leather, with consequent reductions in the prices of both upper and sole leathers. Tanneries have still further reduced the scale of operations or have closed down during the month.

Cotton Mills on Part Time.
Cotton mills continued to operate on part time schedules due to lack of orders, and while there are not many complete shutdowns, the percentage of operating capacity in the industry is low.

The Boston district reports that Lowell cotton mills are operating at about 50 per cent of capacity. Some mills in the district are said to be manufacturing for stock in the absence of orders.

The Philadelphia district reports that woolen yarn spinners are receiving practically no orders, although September and October are usually the busiest months.

Mills in the district are variously reported to be operating at from 10 per cent to 80 per cent of capacity, those more fully employed running on back orders. One factory, working at 25 per cent of its capacity, stated that from 20 to 40 per cent of the work was being done for stock.

Yarn Prices Halt Manufacture.

Mills engaged in the manufacture of underwear in the Philadelphia district are also either shut down or running at a small fraction of capacity. The uncertainty in regard to yarn prices as well as lack of orders, helps to explain the existing situation.

In hosiery lines the closing of plants is general. Instability in yarn prices has made for frequent changes in prices quoted by manufacturers, with a resultant hesitancy on the part of jobbers and retailers to place orders.

Carpet and rug mills in the Philadelphia district are receiving practically no orders, according to reports although some of them are manufacturing for stock.

CONSUELO TO WED FRENCH AVIATOR

SOFT COAL PITS DISGORGE FUEL TO KEEP U.S. HOT

12,000,000 Tons Dug for 3 Weeks in Row.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 31.—Soft coal production has exceeded 12,000,000 tons for the third week in succession, reports compiled by the United States geological survey show.

Estimates made public today placed the output for the week ending Oct. 23 at 12,146,000 net tons, while reports on Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday of last week showed an increase over the corresponding days of the previous week.

Dumpings at tidewater reached 1,375,000 net tons for the week ending Oct. 24. Exports amounted to 664,000 tons. Tonnage supplied to bunker coal increased to 250,000 tons, attributable to increased demand coincident with the British coal strike.

Miners Get 50 Per Cent Margin.
Margins of bituminous coal producers were nearly 50 per cent greater in June than in May, according to a report on cost production issued by the federal trade commission.

The figures for June show that the average sales realization of the 555 operators reporting was $3.44 per ton, while their total reported f. o. b. mine cost amounted to $2.70. Of this latter amount $2.02 represented labor costs per ton, 31 cents cost of supplies, and 37 cents general expenses.

The difference between sales realization and f. o. b. mine costs per ton is the "margin," which was 14 cents per ton.
"Margin" Not Profit.
The commission emphasized the point that the "margin" is not the same as profit, inasmuch as selling expenses and interest on borrowed capital must be deducted, while such items as income from outside investments must be added.

The sales realization of 535 identical operators increased from $2.23 per ton in May, 1920, to $3.43 per ton in June, while their total f. o. b. mine cost decreased from $2.72 per ton to $2.69, and their resultant margin consequently increased from 51 cents per ton in May to 74 cents in June, or an increase of nearly 50 per cent.

To the Voters of the United States:

Chicago, November 1, 1920.

MY reasons for supporting Governor Cox and the Democratic Party in this presidential campaign, and for wishing to put all the strength that in me lies into that support, represent to me an imperative command.

It will be understood from the name I bear how painful the reasons are, constituting as they do an arraignment of the Republican Party which I have loved for years, and for whose historic leadership I have so profound respect.

We are confronting a great national issue which comes to us out of the world war. The issue is embodied in the League of Nations.

We must decide what is our part in reconstructing human affairs among the nations out of the greatest catastrophe in the history of the world.

What we do and the way in which we do it will affect the world for generations to come.

It is therefore not too much to expect of ourselves that we put this great question first in our minds today, and ask ourselves about it:

Shall we go backwards in shirking, or forwards towards responsibility?

Is the United States in the world for selfishness or service?

Shall we approach the solution of our world responsibility through the dark uncertainty of the new political operations intimated by the Republican Party; or shall we take the road that leads to the open door awaiting us?

These are some of the questions which the voters must answer at the polls on November 2d.

The issue of party is lost today in the issue of great national duty.

The internal questions on which the voter would ordinarily range himself on one side or the other, according to his views of the management of the affairs of the national government, in this or that particular—all these questions should wait. We have had them, and we shall have them. They are not new. We have progressed so far, and we shall progress further in their solution. But they should stand aside now.

The party to whom we commit the government today must answer to us on the one paramount question of our national duty.

The Republican Party is not living up to its history of principle. It is willing to confuse and distort the issue of the League of Nations, which should be held out to our people in all clearness, simplicity and truth, that they may intelligently find where their devotion to duty should lead them.

In all our history we have had no moment with more tremendous consequences at stake than are in our decision about the League of Nations.

In this moment, the Republican candidate for the Presidency is dodging the issue and making great effort to stress all other possible issues to avoid it. The Republican Party is showing us leaders all at variance, and apparently deceiving each other and the public in the effort to get a common road.

Some of their leaders who are in favor of the League are trying to keep step with the heterogeneous course of the party on a separate basis of their own.

It would require tutelage of the candidate to hold him to it. But if tutelage is to be expected, the question is, whose tutelage would be effective?

The political combinations of the Republican Party at this moment seem to be filled with jugglery.

When a man asks to be the leader of the United States in the moment of its sovereign gift of itself newly to the world, his course and his reasons should be understood and approved by all the people. He should express their purpose and their spirit.

The course of the Republican candidate?—who can tell it?

The propositions of the candidate and the party are uncertain. They give us hints of "an association." A new association is a will o' the wisp, and the idea is an insult to all of the civilized nations who are now members of the League.

If the Republican candidate advocates dealing with the existing League of Nations, which he has repudiated; he gives no concrete idea of what he would do or how he would do it.

He hints at private understandings with various nations—which suggests only a return to secret diplomacy.

We are not presented by the Republican Party with a clear course or with sound reasoning; nor yet, it seems, with the whole truth of the situation.

In their reasoning, as presented at all, we find selfishness and fear to be the dominant notes.

Whether personal animus or party ambition are playing a part in their attitude on this world question we do not like even to think.

No man or group of men, nor their wrongs, actual or imagined, nor their mistakes, are the issue today.

The organization of humanity is at stake today, and awaits our action.

The Republican Party does not offer us a possible leadership in this great moment.

I am moved by the thought that the Republican Party is now repudiating and endangering, by its attitude, the development of the principle once originated within it by James G. Blaine.

The principle of the League of Nations is the principle of Pan-American Association extended to the civilized world.

The Democratic Party offers us today the consummate achievement of our President acting and speaking for our people—in the actual realization of the aspirations and dreams of men through ages for association together instead of separation throughout the world.

The Democratic Party offers us a straight road to the fulfillment of national duty. We should take it, and take it so strongly, that the ring of it will echo around the world, and the spokesman of our decision receive from us the command of the people of the United States to go forward in the true spirit of our nation.

I believe that those Republicans who are loyal to the United States first are called upon to vote the Democratic ticket in the Presidential election of 1920.

The criticisms of the League do not seem to be honest. They savor of dust—thrown in the eyes of the people.

I must call attention to some of them, and I must make most mention of the recent utterances of a great jurist who reviews the situation for the people.

It seems that he must have been misquoting himself and underrating public understanding when he says that "the League is an alliance to enforce perpetually, for all future time, the decisions of Mr. Wilson and his associates in 1919, without regard to whether these decisions should prove to have been right or wrong."

We cannot make this statement accord with the facts. We hope he does not reveal an effort to arouse personal feeling in support of his plea when he alludes to the decisions of "Mr. Wilson and his associates."

There is a sadness in being called upon to point out such a mistake in a statement on this subject in this moment from such a source.

What of revolution? What of purchase?—methods of adjusting boundaries which we of the United States must consider good ones. And what of the methods of changing boundaries which are in the process of evolution—arbitration or common consent to separate?

The fact seems clear and simple that the need for changing boundaries is one of the most fundamental reasons for the existence of a League of Nations. Without a League they can hardly be changed except by war. The League of Nations is precisely the one place where questions involving boundaries can be brought and solutions of justice reached without war.

It is the only instrumentality which would help the world to progress toward peaceful and civilized methods of settling their differences, including their boundaries.

It is only the method of highway robbery of territory, and subjugation of people, that the League commits its members to prohibit.

We know the great lawyer would not stand as the upholder and continuer of these barbaric methods through all time—this barbaric state of things which is responsible for the origin of the world war, and marks the stage of society out of which the world must progress if war is to be abolished.

The chief part of his argument is based on this error. We regret that such a mistake shakes the whole.

His second objection, to our submitting to the League our policies whenever that would be appropriate, seems to unnecessarily doubt the strength of our policies.

His third objection, that the provisions of the League are against the American desire for international law, seems strange when we know that the League becomes the sponsor for the development of a real court of international justice; and strange when in another part of his address he calls this an incidental provision.

We must conclude that he has not too carefully examined his arguments, but is swayed by a belief that we should stay by ourselves and still fight our way—that we should not progress toward co-operation and world union.

On his fourth objection, that the League creates a super-government, we must remind ourselves that our conception of government is not that it is a ruler, but a servant of the people, and that this conception must increase, must grow, in the world.

His fifth objection, that the provisions of the League do not correctly articulate with our constitutional provisions to make those who represent us in the League responsible to the people, leads us to the thought that we must surely expect that with new duties and functions we must evolve adaptations of our machinery to meet all needs. Whatever changes would be found to be desirable in order to bring our operations in the League close to the people of this country, would surely be brought about.

Other directions have been pointed out in which parts of the machinery of our government may not meet all of the present requirements, or may be an outgrown expression of relations as they were seen in 1789. It might not be disadvantageous for the United States to have occasion to review some of them, and the history of the last months suggests the thought that even senatorial functions might well undergo some change.

The criticisms of Article X do not see its purpose, and they miscalculate its effect.

The first object of the League is to prevent war. As in all else for prevention, the root of the evil should be cured. Land grabbing and subjugation of peoples, from all ages, are the chief causes of war. So, if all nations unite in an agreement not to permit these things, to that extent the chief cause of war is abolished.

If that cause is left an open way, the tendency to war might be too strong to curb. But with this agreement against aggression, the end of war begins. When Russia and Germany and all civilized nations come into the League, in their own time, the entire civilized world will be committed to this agreement.

Thus the Article is preventive, and its moral effect deterrent of war in the highest degree. With the force of a signed agreement against aggression, and mutual promise to use all means besides war first, to enforce it, the element of physical force becomes a final power in the background. It may be looked upon as the same kind of necessity as a policeman's club, which by its presence avoids the necessity of its use.

It seems quite certain that a war crisis would be further removed from us because of such an agreement as this Article calls for.

It seems that the possible obligation to go to war, under the Article, is not comparable with the moral and practical effect of the Article on the whole world to refrain from that chief cause of war.

It seems that war would be almost impossible while the agreement holds.

The misconception about the six votes of the British Empire is an easy mistake to understand, because the arrangement concerns two bodies.

It is not true that the British Empire has six votes to our one vote in the Council, which is the main responsible body of the League.

In this body each member has one vote and one representative—the British Empire one, the United States one.

In the lower body, or Assembly, which is the consultative body of the League, the five colonies of the British Empire have each one vote, independent of Great Britain's vote.

This body, which is largely devoted to discussion, is the place in which it is recognized that the colonies of the British Empire are of a size and importance to warrant their having an individual part to play in the opinion of the world.

By the same token, their part would not necessarily be in unison with Great Britain. These great, free commonwealths—Canada, Australia and the rest—are just as likely to influence the world in directions of the thought of the United States as in directions of Great Britain's.

But in any case submitted for vote in the Assembly, the United States could not be outvoted, for all decisions of the Assembly are conditioned on the concurrence of the Council, which must be unanimous. The result is that no decision of the League could override the vote of the United States.

In the event that the United States should be a party to a controversy with the British Empire, and by reason of the controversy both would be excluded from voting, it is understood that no part of the British Empire would have a vote in such a case. This spot, which contains an intricacy, should and would of course be made wholly clear in our entrance into the League.

Of the injustices which no doubt are contained in the Treaty, and which we should consider, it seems to be correct that we should accept these as the nearest approach to what we should call justice which could be obtained in the tangle of circumstances then existing, out of a conference in which powers were met equally, just from the throes of war, to frame a Treaty.

It seems that we should take the arrangements that were made, only as a basis for beginning the League and not to be thought of as provisions of the League—but quite the contrary.

The League itself must be recognized as a forum where all injustices which concern the world can be brought, and where, for the first time, solutions can be arrived at peacefully.

In discussing all sides of the League, it is to be remembered that the League can go forward to perfect itself from its beginning.

It is also to be remembered that if it does not seem to the United States to do so, and if it should seem to us to regress instead of progress, we can withdraw from it.

In the discussion of the criticisms of the Covenant of the League, the great values that it contains are not mentioned, and need to be constantly kept in mind.

There are great fundamental constructive measures which are built upon the foundation of the League—measures that are already begun for civilization, and point to yet undreamed-of development—

- international co-operation,
- open agreements,
- international law as a foundation of national action,
- reduction of armaments,
- mutual supervision of manufacture of munitions,
- mutual supervision of international relations threatening to disturb peace,
- agreement to invite arbitration or inquiry in disputes,
- agreement to accept arbitration in certain cases,
- establishment of a permanent court of international justice which may also be advisory,
- public discussion of disputes,
- if by member reports to war, disregarding the Covenant, all agree to sever relations, and use non-war measures first jointly—thus for the first time in history beginning a plan by which nations may emerge out of methods of settling their differences which individuals have long agreed to call barbarous,
- guardianship of nations suddenly freed and unable to stand alone,
- agreement to endeavor to secure and maintain throughout the world fair conditions of labor, just treatment of native inhabitants of ward nations,
- superiority of agreements about dangerous traffics,
- freedom of communication,
- international prevention and control of disease,
- international support of the Red Cross.

It is all of this that the opposition is today asking us to let them throw away.

The question for us is, how do they dare to do it?

It is a turning point in our history. Not since the Civil War have we had such grave issues hanging in the balance. East, West, North and South should unite in one thought—National honor—National duty.

Never again shall we have the same opportunity—a chance to lead the world to democracy.

Shall we stay back and out?

Shall we go forward through the open door and help to evolve the League from within?

The door is opened by the sufferings of the world. Strange that any should think that the ideal would deter us who are bred of ideals and daring.

Following in the footsteps of Columbus, of Washington and of Lincoln, shall we not trust our strength?

Coming out of the great war we are changed. We have caught the fire of our fathers. We have caught the spirit of our sons.

When civilization needed our help, they turned the tide. It was done then.

The League of Nations is built upon the labors and sacrifices of our youth. We must not fail of its achievement.

It carries forward what they gave themselves to begin. It builds a new world of freedom and faith on the world they gave themselves to save.

Let it carry their spirit to the uttermost parts of the earth.

Wm. E. Blaine

(Mrs. Emmens Blaine.)

DEAD IN A DAY; AUTO HITS POLE IN SHERIDAN RD.

Race for Crossing Adds to Motor Fatalities.

Deaths by Automobiles
in Chicago Since Jan. 1, 447

Eight persons died in motor vehicle accidents yesterday and early this morning.

Water Gribbens, chauffeur for Edward Kahn, a South Water street merchant, took his employer to his home at the Parkway hotel about midnight this morning. Gribbens then went to a saloon at Buckingham place and Halsted street, where he met Tom Flood, said to be an ex-prize fighter, and three other men. They went for a joy ride. At Cornelia avenue and Sheridan road the car skidded and hit a light pole. The machine turned over, pinning the men beneath it. Flood was killed. The others were slightly injured.

Crossing Race Fatal.

Racing for a crossing at West Fifty-first street, the automobile of Joseph Ciochavelli, 6250 South Western avenue, was struck by a Pere Marquette passenger train. The automobile of Henry Sandler, 5217 South Honore street, the other racer, hit a freight car.

Both men and John Sataru, 5205 South Wood street, were killed. Arthur Buks, 8534 South Green street, and Alfred Mathias, 5604 South May street, were seriously injured. The two automobiles were returning from a Halloween party.

Killed in Husband's Auto.

Mr. Fred Smallhorn, 1923 West Fifty-sixth street, was killed when her husband drove his automobile into a city island at East Forty-seventh street and Michigan avenue. The automobile rebounded from the island onto the automobile of Mr. and Mrs. William Krospeck, 5613 North Troy street. They were seriously injured. The police are holding Smallhorn.

Mrs. Florence Hedrich Schay, 2708 Madison place, died of injuries received when her automobile collided with another automobile.

Seven year old Albert Seeburger, 1114 South State street, was killed by the automobile of Christ Draso, 3032 Madison avenue.

RAILROAD BARES AGENTS' GRAFT IN PULLMAN BERTHS

Substantiation of charges, made frequently in the days of the United States railroad administration—that Pullman reservations could be obtained only by political pull or generous tipping of ticket agents—was made public yesterday by the Pennsylvania Railroad company.

In an official statement the railroad officials declare that after investigation they found that many Pennsylvania ticket agents were holding back Pullman space to force seekers for reservations to pay them gratuities. The statement adds that the offending agents were discharged and requests that in all cases where agents refuse applications for space the company be informed of the time of application so that a check may be made on the activities of agents seeking tips.

It also was announced that the sale of Pullman tickets would be taken over by the Pullman company—which was deprived of this privilege during the war—as soon as arrangements can be made.

"Sound Money" Hanna Expires at Indianapolis

Indianapolis, Ind., Oct. 31.—Hugh Henry Hanna Sr., known internationally as a "sound money" advocate and member of several commissions to advise on foreign exchange, died here today. He was 72 years old.

He also was prominent in the affairs of the Presbyterian church, having been president of the Presbyterian Brotherhood of America in 1906 and in 1911 was appointed vice moderator of the general assembly of the church.

He was elected as one of the Republican presidential electors from Indiana in 1900. Death was due to uremic poisoning.

Rabbi Wise Speaks at Roosevelt Memorial

"Theodore Roosevelt—Pioneer," a Congressman, courageous, unafraid, and a joy to all the world throughout his life, Rabbi Stephen S. Wise, friend and counselor of Roosevelt since he met him in a classroom at Columbia university twenty-nine years ago, characterized the former president at the Sunday Evening club's Roosevelt memorial meeting in Orchestra hall last night.

Dr. Wise insisted Theodore Roosevelt was not a radical, but ever a conservative of the highest, holiest things in our American life.

SCRATCHING THE BALLOT

HELEN WILSON, of the Independent Republican headquarters in the Morrison hotel, demonstrated Saturday her ability to take advantage of the franchise when she marked and scratched her ballot in one minute and twenty-five seconds.

Miss Wilson, whose home is at 5323 Harper avenue, marked two columns and made twelve "cross-overs" from one column to another in the elapsed time. She did not mark the party circle.

"It's easy when you know how," she said. "When we women get used to it we can surely beat the men in quick—but conscientious voting."

COUNTY JUDGE ASKS THAT TOILERS HAVE EARLY RIGHT OF WAY

BY COUNTY JUDGE BURNS.

On the eve of election I want to appeal to those voters of Chicago who have sufficient leisure to enable them to vote during the middle of the day to keep away from the polls until after 9 o'clock tomorrow morning. I ask this in order that easy access to the polls may be afforded the working people of the city, who must vote before they go to work or not at all. I anticipate that they will require more time than usual for their voting, judging from the hundreds of requests for information as to how to split a ballot which I am receiving.

My final word to the voters who intend to split their ballots is this: Do not put any crosses in any party circle. Leave that cross blank. Put a cross in the square in front of the name of every candidate you favor, regardless of which ticket he is on. Be sure and vote for the presidential electors in this way.

Again I want to instruct judges and clerks of election not to hurry the voters and to give them ample time. I am informed that a certain organization has issued cards which give voters an impression that their voting will be facilitated if the cards are presented to judges and clerks of election. I warn the judges and clerks of election to pay no attention to these cards. Those who present them should be forced to take the last place in any line that forms in the polling places.

PAIN-LAW LANDS HERO on Bad Check Charge

Dominic Dunscombe, former lieutenant overseas, wounded, gassed, decorated, recently married to Adelaide Esch, of 3735 North Natoma avenue, was arrested in Ogden, Utah, yesterday. His father-in-law charges the hero passed bogus checks that cost him and his family $531.76. The checks were stolen from O. J. Vogel, manager of the Falk American Potato Flour company, on a Pullman en route from Pittsburgh. Eschorn says he was surprised if Adelaide's name came to Chicago on that train.

HEIGHTS' SCHOOL CHIEF ON TRIAL FOR BRUTALITY

Father Charges He Beat
Boy with Rubber Hose.

Chicago Heights is excited over efforts to secure the discharge of Floyd T. Goodier, superintendent of schools, whom residents charge with beating pupils with a rubber hose.

Goodier will be arraigned today before Justice Frank A. McKee of Oak Park on a charge of assault with a deadly weapon. Joseph Healy of Hilltop, a suburb of Chicago Heights, has preferred the charges in behalf of his son, Russell, 12 years old.

Healy is a night superintendent for the American Manganese Steel company. He charges the beatings by Goodier has left his son unable to attend classes. He also has filed suit for $5,000 damages against Goodier.

Called Modern Prof. Squeezers.

In the complaint Miss Anna Bella Spencer, public guardian of Cook county and Healy's attorney, portrays Goodier as a modern Prof. Squeezers, and his school as a second Dethlefsen's hall.

Goodier is charged with planting his knee in the Healy boy's back, and beating him with a rubber hose.

Goodier admitted last night that he beat the boy. "I beat another boy that same day," he said. "They were punished for fighting. It is in accordance with the rules of the Chicago Heights board of education. The state legislature gives a board of education the privilege of making rules for corporal punishment."

Admits Using Rubber Hose.

"We use rubber hoses about eleven inches long. We punish only in accordance with the rules, which are that the correction must be made out of sight of other pupils and in the presence of another teacher."

According to Healy, his son was hit on the head with a golf ball during the summer by Harry Thompson, another pupil of the same age. The blow has made him deaf in one ear. The Thompson boy and Russell had been quarreling. Healy declares, and on his advice Russell defended himself when accosted by the Thompson boy en route to school. Russell emerged the victor, and the beating by Goodier followed.

When the story spread about Chicago Heights a petition was circulated asking Robert Holbrook, president of the board of education, to remove Goodier from office. Goodier is charged with brutality, inefficiency, erratic conduct, and with having exceeded his authority.

The charges against Goodier will be repeated Thursday in Chicago Heights, when 21 Green, 219 Morgan street, will be arraigned for not sending his son Isaac to school. Isaac, it is charged, was beaten by Goodier, and expelled from school. When the boy did not appear at classes the arrest of the father was ordered.

5,000 SOCIALISTS MARCH AND SING AT CAMPAIGN END

Five thousand Socialists participated in a parade ending in a big final campaign demonstration at the Ashland Boulevard auditorium, Ashland boulevard and Van Buren street, yesterday afternoon. The procession was headed by a band and several large American flags found prominent place in the line.

The first contingent, consisting of a large delegation of the garment workers' union, assembled at Twenty-first and Blue Island avenue. At Eighteenth street and at Roosevelt road organizations fell into line. At each stop there was a noisy demonstration. The "Internationale Ode" sung to the strains of the Marseillaise was the greeting of groups.

Heads were bared as it was sung. It was the rallying cry for nearly one-third of the marchers were women and girls.

Banners mostly in white letters on red backgrounds identified the marching units. Banners, likewise in white letters and on red backgrounds, carried legends like this: "Down with the blockade against the workers of Soviet Russia"; "Send Debs from Atlanta to Washington"; "Cox says the league of nations is the Cox of God. We want a man on the job. Elect Debs"; "Long Live the Russian Soviet"; "Free All Political and Industrial Prisoners"; "Lincoln and MacSwiney died to make their countries."

BRAVE COP SAVES DANCING GIRL IN FIRE AT GARDENS

A puff of smoke—the cry of "Fire!"—and orchestra, waiters, entertainers, and patrons in the Campbell Gardens at 2511 Madison street fled for the exits. A dancing girl smoking a cigarette in the dressing room had tossed it carelessly aside, it is said.

The flames sprang up. The smoke was thick. Many girls fled in what they had on, but one of them, Mildred Watson, stumbled and fell. Patrolman John Finerty of Warren avenue station rushed into the dressing room and rescued her. She was revived without difficulty.

The flames were extinguished, the orchestra led the way back, and in a little while Miss Watson was giving her act and the place was as tranquil as before.

WHEN A FELLER NEEDS A FRIEND

CHICAGOAN DIES, WIFE INJURED, IN "DESERT" WRECK

Los Angeles, Cal., Oct. 31.—Francis M. Moody, a sociological worker of Chicago, was one of the three persons killed in last night's "desert" wreck on the Salt Lake railroad, and his wife was one of the nine seriously injured.

The wreck resulted when the Pacific Overland, east bound, plunged from a bridge one mile east of Manteca, Cal., 175 miles from Los Angeles. Mr. Moody had just entered the smoker when the crash came. He was found with a coat hook piercing the back of his head.

Francis M. Moody attracted some attention three years ago by collecting statistics showing the increase of crime in Chicago, and last May he appeared before a congressional investigation committee in Washington to testify on divorce statistics. He was the executive secretary of the International Committee on Marriage and Divorce.

Blames Rigamy on Bible College Reunion "Ban"

Walter J. Nelson, 1455 North Lawn avenue, has been arrested and will be taken to Boone Ia., on a charge of bigamy. While attending an alumni reunion at Boone Biblical college, Nelson says he met Lucille Phillips, a waitress, and married her while under the influence of liquor. When he told her he had a wife and three children in Chicago she obtained a warrant.

Taxi Chauffeur Killed When Struck by Taxicab

M. Gillis, 3935 West Nineteenth street, a taxicab chauffeur, was run down and killed by a taxicab driven by Nathan Silverman, 1244 South Sawyer avenue, last night. Gillis was running across Kedzie avenue at Roosevelt road to his cab when the other cab struck him. Silverman is held.

MISS HAY DENIES REPORT SHE IS SUPPORTING COX

"The newspaper story that I am supporting Cox is absolutely false," declared Mary Garrett Hay yesterday. "and is being made for the purpose of trying to spoil my influence with the Republicans."

The statement was made by her after wide publicity had been given of her reported defection from the Republican party. She asserts she has supported Harding and Coolidge in all speeches she has made in the present campaign. Importance was lent to the charge by the fact that Miss Hay was former chairman of the woman's division of the Republican national committee.

SPANISH COLONY MOURNS LOSS OF 'LITTLE MOTHER'

Spaniards in Chicago mourn the loss of Mrs. Rose Pino, 67 years old, 507 North Dearborn street, who died in her home yesterday of heart failure.

For many years she had been known as the "Little Mother" of the Spanish colony in Chicago. Born in Madrid, Spain, she came to this country fifty years ago with her husband, Joseph Pino, a cigar manufacturer. They lived in New York until his death, five years later. Then she came to Chicago with her three children, Louis, Adelaide, and Joseph Jr., and established the nucleus of the Spanish colony.

She was as well known in Tampa, Fla., as in this city and had a wide circle of friends among the Spaniards throughout the country. Funeral services will be held in the home Tuesday morning.

ANOTHER WOMAN PRINCIPAL URGES BOXING IN SCHOOL

Favors Letting Boys with Grudges Fight It Out.

Not only boxing gloves but instructors in the art of self-defense should be furnished to the public schools.

This was the opinion expressed yesterday by Mrs. Clara W. Crendon, principal of the Haven school, 1472 Wabash avenue, following the suggestion made by George B. Arnold, chairman of the board of education's finance committee, that gloves ought to be used in all schools so boys with grudges could properly settle their difficulties. Represented at the Haven school are twenty-eight nationalities.

The question of fistie combats became of interest to educators several days ago when it was made public that the method of letting boys fight it out in the school basement was tried in the Webster school, 3315 Wentworth avenue, where twenty-two nationalities attend. At this point, Mrs. Alice M. Hodge, principal, acted as referee. According to Miss Hodge, the battle settled the difficulties between the participants.

Favors Gloves and Teachers.

"The school board ought to furnish boxing teachers as well as gloves," said Mrs. Crendon. "It is a great idea to teach the manly art and at the same time end feuds of long standing. If I could get the services of a boxing teacher I would send in a requisition for a set of gloves at once."

"We have very little playground space at the Haven school, and the boys haven't enough room to work off their excess energy. Disputes often arise. The presence of gloves and a teacher of boxing would insure that carrying out of any bouts along scientific lines."

Used in Parental School.

Although it has not generally been known, boxing gloves have been in use in the Parental school, 3600 Foster avenue, for some time. Fred Smith, principal, and president of the Principals' club, declared that the use of the gloves has met with success at the school.

"We don't have many fights here and consequently I have no first hand knowledge of the gloves being used to settle a dispute," said Mr. Smith. "We do use a lot for sport and exercise and we have some very good boxers. The boys like them immensely and generally their use is satisfactory."

PACKERS STATE PRICES OF BEEF DROP 13 PER CENT

Meat prices took another drop during the month of October, according to statements made last night by wholesalers and retailers.

Announcement of a decline averaging 13 per cent on carcass beef at the end of October was compared with the first week of September is made in the regular monthly bulletin of the Institute of American Meat Packers, to be issued today. Sol Westfield, president of the Retail Grocers' association, said:

"Heavy corn fed cattle are still high in price and scarce," he said. "The decline in the price of western range cattle is as the packers say."

"On Oct. 26 the wholesale price of loins weighing from 16 to 20 pounds was 15 to 20 per cent lower than the price of loins weighing from 8 to 10 pounds," reads the packers' statement. "There is a reason why the price of the heavier pork chops is lower than the light ones," said Mr. Westfield. "The heavier loins are cut from older hogs and consequently not as tender as the lighter ones. That is why they are in greater demand than the heavier cuts."

$27,109,768 IN NEW ENGINES AND CARS FOR THE I. C.

An expenditure of $27,109,768 for new equipment has been made by the Illinois Central railroad since its return to private control. This was announced yesterday by C. H. Markham, president of the road.

The purchase includes 150 locomotives, 2,150 coal cars, 1,000 refrigerator cars, 500 stock cars, 300 ordinary box cars, 200 flat cars, twenty suburban coaches, twelve compartment coaches, eighteen baggage cars, five dining cars and fifty cabooses.

In addition the Illinois Central has appropriated $5,000,000 for improvement and enlargement of roadway facilities.

The Illinois Central investment, following extensive expenditures by the Santa Fe for motive power, is regarded as the beginning of a period of expansion and improvement of American railroads.

Twelve Killed by Blast at Niagara Falls Tower

North Tonawanda, N. Y., Oct. 31.—Twelve men were killed early this morning in an explosion and fire at the distributing tower of the Niagara Falls Power company here.

Thirteen men were crowded in the room when there was an explosion, apparently caused by a short circuit. The force of the blast burst a steel barrel of lubricating oil and the flash of the electricity ignited the oil, which was thrown over the men.

Four men were instantly killed, apparently. One escaped serious burns by jumping through a window. The other eight managed to escape from the flame-filled room, but all were so badly burned that they died.

Because it is well acted, "Burglar Proof" makes a reasonably pleasing program picture. It will not, however, set the screen afire, or keep the side-sets blocked for any length of time. It's like a number of the magazines you buy—something to pass the time with if there doesn't seem to be anything better to do.

What was burglar proof was not a safe, but a young man who his associates decided should loosen up. He had the funds, but he hated to use them, having been reared in an atmosphere of strict and oftentimes embarrassing thrift.

Jenny Larkin, a dancing school teacher and a playmate of his boyhood days, after endeavoring in vain to make a spender of young Mr. Harlow, introduces him to another girl of whom she has hopes. They are realized beyond her fondest dreams. Mr. Harlow not only "falls" for the lady, he up and loves her, lavishes flowers, candy and tobacco on her, and is finally affianced. While Jenny Larkin holds the bag.

Mr. Washburn hasn't a particularly sympathetic role. But he plays his part well. The entire support is good, and the picture technically is to be commended.

FASHIONS BLUEBOOK

NEW YORK.—[Special Correspondence.]—Beads of all kinds are being used, and they are one of the most effective channels available for that touch of color necessary to the somber-toned daylight dress everybody is wearing. The accompanying black duvetyne gains life through cranberry-colored wooden beads strung on with black silk yarn. The crepe de chine forming collar and girdle and outlining the sleeves is of the same tint as the beads. Duvetyne is one of the best reasons we know for short sleeves. If any doubt lingers, just price duvetyne.

TRIBUNE COOK BOOK

BY JANE EDDINGTON.

Cheese Cake.

Recipes for this cake have been tested out in my kitchen at intervals during the last six months, and I think that perhaps the best one, one which does not leave an after taste, has been that made from a recipe in the second revision, that of April, 1919, of circular 109, of the United States department of agriculture.

The title of this recipe is "Old Dutch Cheese Cake." This recipe does not appear in the first edition of circular 109, and is only suggested in the first revision. It reads:

"One cup of cottage cheese, two-thirds cup sugar, one-half cup milk, two eggs, two tablespoons cornstarch, one tablespoon melted fat, salt, one-fourth teaspoon lemon juice. Mix the ingredients in order given. Bake or nutmeg may be used for flavoring.

Bake twenty-five minutes in a moderate oven until brown. This makes a firm custard." By all means season with lemon juice.

This recipe is the slightly varied cottage cheese pie recipe which precedes it. Two-thirds of a cup of milk is used for the pie, vanilla instead of lemon juice for flavoring, and no cornstarch. The whites of the eggs are used as a meringue for the pie, making it more attractive. If cooked in a crust these are best if the crust is baked before the filling is added.

I do not have the government circulars and bulletins for distribution as some readers suppose.

STORING DRIED FRUITS

BY FRANK RIDGWAY.

Storing dried fruits successfully depends on protection from moisture, insects, and rodents. After drying apples, peaches, and pears it is well to keep them temporarily in a large tub or similar container covered with a cloth or wire screen. If after a few days there are signs of moisture collecting the fruit should be exposed to the sun or left in an air current or oven for a few hours, taking care not to overheat it.

When all indications of moisture have disappeared, store the fruit in permanent containers. Tin cans and glass jars fitted with tight covers make excellent receptacles.

Freezing does not injure dried fruit. The chance of large quantities being spoiled is lessened if the fruit is packed in jars and small cans, about the size for one or two meals. The cheapest and most convenient container is the small paper bag. Fill the bags about two-thirds full, twist the top to form a neck and tie tightly with a string to keep out insects. Paint the bag with melted paraffin, using a small paint brush or the frayed end of a piece of rope. Paraffin coated bags, boxes and can-shaped cartons can be found on the market.

For further protection place the bags in large tin cans. An ordinary yard can is commonly used.

All dried fruits must be examined occasionally, and if insects appear, spread in a layer in the sun until they disappear. Then heat in oven at a temperature of about 165 degrees Fahrenheit and restore.

DORIS BLAKE'S ANSWERS

Right to Refuse.

"Dear Miss Blake: I am 17 years old and have been keeping company with a young man for ten months. The other night he asked me to kiss him for the first time and I refused. Do you think I did wrong to refuse him? Do you think he cares for me?" "LOLA."

Just because he asks you to kiss him is no sign he cares for you. Many young men nowadays don't seem to think it necessary to care much for a girl before asking her for kisses. As a matter of fact, with the girl whom he discovers he really cares for, a man will hesitate a long time before making this request for fear the girl will lose her respect for him.

BRIGHT SAYINGS OF THE CHILDREN

While visiting at the home of a relative I was much amused to hear my cousin say to her grandmother: "Will you please hitch the thread to the needle, so I can sew a dress for my dolly?"

It was at the end of Elizabeth Ann's first month at school. She had come proudly home with her perfect attendance card and with the information that there had been five absent minded children this month. On being asked what she meant she replied: "Why, that five children forgot to come to school."

Bobby was afraid of storms and when he heard thunder would run to his mother to be comforted.

The Splendor That Is Mary Garden
Revealed Again
BY RUTH MILLER.

Mary Garden's art is like a tongue of flame upleaping, hypnotic in its thousand tantalizing, shifting values, perfect in its gorgeous, flaunting beauty, and superb in the breath-taking way it catches those puny ineffectual souls near it in its inescapable fire, and in passing leaves them vivid tinders, glowing with a reflected brilliance. Her tone is like that, too, changing from the thrill of tortured passion to the gentle cooling of a lullaby even as the deep ruddy heart of burning slips into the vague, tenuous smoke mist which clings about its iridescent, quivering edges.

Yesterday at the Auditorium Miss Garden was more than a slim, beautiful woman in a startling dress of violent greenness with a scarlet flower caught like some strange, monstrous butterfly on the hip; more than a daring, charming personality whose adorable friendliness years of artistic supremacy and adulation have failed to tarnish with smugness or condescension; and more than an audacious, shrewd show woman; she was a great musician, earnest, sincere, and absolute in her amazing artistry.

She deviated not one disheartening second from pitch, she never slaughtered that great fundamental of music, rhythm, to make a prima donna's holiday, nor did she violate any pedantic rule pertaining to style and musicianship. True, she changed "Comin' Thro' the Rye" from a whining, sentimental ballad to a sparkling, living bit of demure, feminine impertinence, but by what rule may one, when one considers the innate sauciness of its text, condemn its hackneyed strains to a maudlin, sugared musical interpretation?

Incidentally Miss Garden was in unusually good voice, and sang the Glendora air in a manner to satisfy even the determined vocal quibblers. And no matter what one's operative affections may be, one never leaves a performance of that lovely woman, great mind, and uncanny understanding that

WEDDINGS

Miss Margaret Lucile Carr, daughter of former Judge William O. Carr of Chicago and Oklahoma, a granddaughter of Col. C. W. Carr of Chicago, was married Saturday to Mr. J. Sheldon Williams of Chicago and Pennsylvania.

MRS. J. S. WILLIAMS

The wedding took place at the residence of the bride's uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. James Trempey of Minneapolis. Mr. and Mrs. Williams will be at home shortly at 421 West Sixty-fifth place.

Miss Marie Rose Sweeney, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James W. Sweeney of 716 Roscoe street, was married Saturday to Emil Hagen of 3041 Belmont avenue. The ceremony was at Our Lady of Mount Carmel church, followed by a wedding breakfast at the Hotel La Salle.

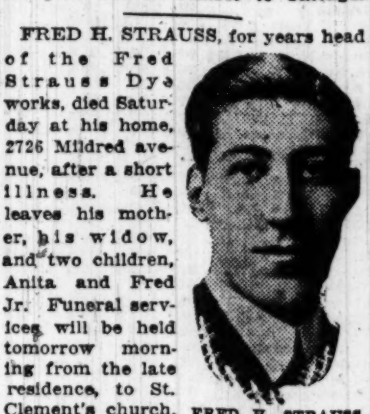

Sharing the program with Miss Garden was Charles Hackett, whose luscious vocalism, voluminous, saccharine tone and operatically traditional method of vocalization proved vastly acceptable to the huge and happy audience.

Guinea Casket, cellist, listed as an assisting artist, proved himself to be possessed of masterly phrasing, an infallible left hand technique, splendid bowing, excellent intonation and a tone of a warm, mellow richness.

Isaac Van Grove, the accompanist, was one of those rare musicians whose tone, with its deep, luminous quality, furnished a colorful, perfect and individual background for each artist, for whom he played.

Charles A. Marsh, Lumber
Man, Taken by Death

Charles A. Marsh, 63 years old, long prominent in the lumber business in Chicago, died yesterday at his residence, 6339 Blackstone avenue. Mr. Marsh was the first man to bring yellow pine and fir lumber to Chicago.

FRED H. STRAUSS

FRED H. STRAUSS, for years head of the Fred Strauss Dry goods, died Saturday at his home, 2728 Midland avenue, after a short illness. He leaves his mother, Anita, and Fred Jr. Funeral services will be held tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock at St. Clement's church.

BEAUTY ANSWERS
BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.
MOTHER: YOU HAVE TRIED TOO much local treatment and not enough internal in your attempts to remedy daughter's complexion. The basic laws of clean healthy skin require a sane, healthy diet and daily evacuation of the bowels. Water, externally and internally, daily is important. Have her drink six to eight glasses, at least, a day. And one daily bath is necessary to a clean wholesome skin.

In Search of a Dime.
The café at which I am employed as cashier is located near the depot. A transient customer favored me with a few minutes' conversation while waiting his check. When I gave him his change he accidentally dropped a dime on the floor. I remarked that the porter would get it when he swept. So he made no effort to find his lost money. My most embarrassing moment was when he swept me with a broom vigorously sweeping between the counters trying to locate his dime.

TRADE NERVOUS, WHILE FARMERS CLING TO GRAIN

BY CHARLES D. MICHAELS.

Nervousness prevails in the wheat trade, as there are many cross currents at work and constantly developing. Farmers are being urged to hold wheat for higher prices, and may win out for a time, but should their position be wrong, as many in the grain trade believe, they will not make as much as they expect by selling later.

The movement is under last year's, and with stocks light, especially at Chicago, and with claims that $5,000,000 have been sold for export, mainly for November and December loading, there is a feeling that it is not wise to press sales for December too far.

Public Is Pessimistic.

Economic conditions are against bull markets at present, and the public is not trading in any extent. Should the farmers make good in their holding movement for thirty to forty days without wheat sold for export without having the cash grain might be made uncomfortable. Should it develop that the large holdings by the seaboard exporters must load the next two months there will have to be a larger movement of wheat from the farms or there will be a lively scramble on the part of those who have sold to get the grain to deliver and an advance.

There are intimations from the seaboard that a considerable quantity of wheat has been bought by exporters in anticipation of a large foreign demand and a big advance in price. If their position is right prices might move up. If not, and they sell out, a decline might easily result.

The sentimental effect of the farmers' holding movement is bullish, especially as Chicago stocks are around 700,000 bu., which is too small for a big market, and only a little more than 100,000 bu. are in public elevators available for delivery on December contracts.

While the export sales in all positions last week exceeded 6,000,000 bu. of wheat, a large percentage was of Manitoba. This wheat is moving through the States and is expected to continue, as it is more readily handled. The more Canadian wheat that is sold abroad the greater will be our surplus of the domestic grain for home consumption and disposition later in the season.

Bushels Bring Out Wheat.

The United States is a big country and there are many wheat farmers who, like others, are always hard up, regardless of how much they make or produce. Every good advance in price is expected to bring out a little wheat.

Cars for moving grain are in the best supply in more than two years and the railroads are getting few new orders. Despite continued good premiums for cash wheat, the movement is not large, as primary arrivals of 9,419,000 bu. were 66,000 bu. under last year's. Large arrivals in the northwest and in Winnipeg have depressed Minneapolis December from 50 over to 2½c under Chicago within two weeks.

December wheat in Chicago closed Saturday at $2.05½, and March $2.02½, 2½c, gaining ½c for the week. Prices follow:

December. March
Monday.....$2.05½.....$2.02½
Tuesday.....$2.06.....$2.03
Wednesday.....$2.06½.....$2.03½
Thursday.....$2.07.....$2.04
Friday.....$2.07½.....$2.04½
Saturday.....$2.08.....$2.05
For week.....$2.05½.....$2.02½
Previous week.....$2.04.....$2.01½

Fair Rally Is Seen.

Corn prices move up ½c from the recent low point, partly in sympathy with wheat, and on the reduced country movement and a better cash demand. Farmers are not disposed to sell freely at the moment, but are being urged to sell, as corn grain have declined more than any commodity. Various reports from farm organizations indicate the farmers will hold for thirty to sixty days, as they believe they cannot lose much if anything.

Industries are feeling the effects of a greatly reduced trade. Shipping and export demand, however, has picked up. A report came from New York that 600,000 bu. were bought from a Chicago cash handler on one day last week, as seaboard exporters who have not sold abroad. Argentine corn is in short competition with American in England.

The New York Times.

New York, Oct. 31.—[Special.]—Wall Street met with so much discouragement last week in the matter of the "pre-election rally" that it was interesting this week to see how the hopes of an "after election market" will fare. The "election market" is as robust a financial tradition as that of the bad business which is supposed to arrive in the campaign months of presidential years, and both traditions are being tested by the results of the election.

Today the financial markets and the stock exchange have been tested by the results of the election. The market has been tested by the results of the election. The market has been tested by the results of the election.

Trade Reaction Keeps Up. The past week's movement of money in the stock exchange has amounted to a veto on the "pre-election rally" and the market has been tested by the results of the election.
